EDITOR'S NOTE

Lady Power

This month, television turns its eyes to historic females in two new very high-profile drama series with some A-list talent attached to each. First up is Showtime's anthology series The First Lady (page 12), which takes a look at three of our country's most memorable ladies: Eleanor Roosevelt (played by Gillian Anderson), Betty Ford (Michelle Pfeiffer) and Michelle Obama (Viola Davis). One week later, Julia Roberts gives a performance to remember as Martha Mitchell, wife of former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell, in Starz's eight-episode limited series Gaslit. Roberts stars alongside an unrecognizable Sean Penn in this riveting story about love and betrayal set against the Watergate scandal (page 14).

We say goodbye to a few beloved series this month, including one of my personal favorites — Ozark, where the remaining seven episodes will drop on Netflix on April 29. Will the devastated Ruth Langmore (the amazing Julia Garner) finish off Marty and Wendy Byrde? I'm already nervous. BBC America's Killing Eve also ends after its thrilling four-season run, and AMC's Better Call Saul starts its final season. There's so much to enjoy this month — take a look inside.

Happy viewing!

RANDOM RANTS & RAVES

■ What Network Is “Peaky Blinders” Now On?

I used to watch Peaky Blinders on Netflix and was excited when I heard it is back, but I don't see it available on Netflix. What's going on with that? – Matt

The wait certainly has been long for the sixth and final season of the popular gangster drama. It debuted in the U.K. only, where new episodes air on Sundays on BBC One and BBC iPlayer. Netflix most likely will get rights to the new season this spring. Seasons 1-5 are available on Netflix now.

■ Are “Homestead Rescue” And “Holmes Family Rescue” Real?

I'm writing you because I have some questions that I really need to know. There are two shows, Homestead Rescue and Holmes Family Rescue, both of which have people helping others in need, and I'm trying to figure out where the money comes from. Do the channels pay the people who are helping people, or do the people helping the other people do it for free? – Mark “Homestead Rescue’s” Marty Raney is a former logger and Alaskan homesteader, now TV star. In the series, the Raney family would travel the country and help teach people to thrive in their element, and that’s not fake. As a result of the show and his work, Marty is a TV personality and is compensated for that. In his 20-year career with HGTV, Mike Holmes has built quite an empire and has had numerous TV series and specials, including “Holmes Family Rescue.” As one of Canada’s most trusted, Holmes has donated his talents to many ventures (some charitable), but when it comes to the TV world, talent is always paid. As with any reality series, a production company typically fronts the costs and ultimately sells the show to a network. Networks are in it to get viewers and gain advertising dollars.

■ More On The “Outlander” Stars

Thanks for your feature on Outlander. I love your magazine and the series! I'm not on the internet nor do I get many celebrity magazines, so I'm not caught up with all the gossip on the stars of the show, but I'd love to know if Claire and Jamie are dating in real life. They sure do a good job acting to make me believe that would be the case! – Evelyn Sam Heughan and Caitriona Balfe, who play Jamie and Claire Fraser, are not dating; in fact, Balfe was married in 2019 to music producer Tony McGill and the two welcomed their first child, a son, in August of 2021. Balfe is extremely private and has not announced his name or posted photos of his face. Heughan, now 41, is also extremely private about his love life and has often said “my career comes first.” He’s been linked to a number of women in the past.

■ Theaters First For Movies? Not Always.

I'm trying to understand the path of movies these days. Originally movies would debut in theaters then move to Pay-Per-View then to premium networks like HBO, Showtime and Starz. Now it seems like this is all over the board. Is there any logic to this? – Karl

The short answer is no. Since the pandemic, studios have been experimenting with all sorts of availability windows. Warner Bros. debuted each of their 2021 theatrical releases concurrently in theaters and on their streaming service, HBO Max. We’ve seen titles like “West Side Story” go from theaters to Disney+ and HBO Max and finally offer consumers a Pay-Per-View option. The twisted period drama “Nightmare Alley,” starring Bradley Cooper, debuted in theaters late last year and was available to stream on both HBO Max and Hulu in February and is just now coming to Pay-Per-View. It’s confusing! We definitely help movie fans with our Movies On Demand section (page 24) and our streaming section (page 26).

THE GRAMMYS!

CBS Brings On The Music Awards This Month.

By Jeff Pfeiffer

A couple of notable music awards ceremonies air this month, postponed from their original, earlier dates by the pandemic. Both broadcasts are airing on CBS and will also be available to stream live and on demand on Paramount+.

First up, the 64th Annual Grammy Awards ceremony, which was originally slated to be held Jan. 31 in Los Angeles, will now air live across all time zones from the MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas on Sunday, April 3, marking the first time the Grammys have switched host cities for a single ceremony. Jon Batiste leads the field with 11 nominations, including Album of the Year and Best R&B Album for We Are, and Record of the Year for "Freedom." Other notable nominees include Doja Cat, H.E.R. and Justin Bieber, who each have eight nominations. Last year's Grammys host, The Daily Show's Trevor Noah, returns as master of ceremonies this year.

The 2022 CMT Music Awards, the latest installment of country music's only entirely fan-voted awards show, had originally been slated for April 3, but with the Grammys' move to that date, CMT's event has also had to shift, but only to about a week later: It will air live (tape-delayed Pacific time) from Nashville's historic Municipal Auditorium on Monday, April 11. This marks the ceremony's return to April; over its 40-plus-year history, it has aired for long stretches in June, with April ceremonies sandwiched in between from 2003-08. This is also the awards show's debut on a broadcast network, after previously having been broadcast on CMT and, before that, the now-defunct TNN. Country star Kelsea Ballerini, who has three nominations this year, and actor Anthony Mackie will cohost the awards.

CELEBRITY GHOST STORIES

Did You Hear About The Ghost Story From ...
GREG KINNEAR

"This is absolutely true and, honestly, the only real strange ooga-booga moment I can point to because I haven't, honestly, had a lot of these kinds of experiences, but I brought my dog over to see a friend of mine. It was Luke Wilson. Went over to his house on a Saturday, just hanging out, and his dog had died recently, and I brought my dog Winston. Everybody's met Winston, a very happy dog – a very joyful, soulful animal – and we were sitting in his living room, and Winston without any hesitation walked straight over to this bureau, started clawing at this little box that was there and howling with a kind of pain and just very emotional. I've just never heard my dog sort of writhing before, and Luke says, 'That's my dog's ashes that are in that box,' and I thought that was a very, very strange moment."

5 QUESTIONS WITH LISA WHELCHER

By Barb Oates

Former New Mickey Mouse Club and Facts of Life star Lisa Whelchel returns to host Season 3 of MeTV's popular original series Collector's Call (airing Sundays). Almost all of the 23 new episodes find Whelchel back on the road visiting collectors across the country and, for that, she couldn't be happier. Here she took some time out from her other job as a life coach to answer our "5 Questions."

1 Coming into this season, what collection really touched your heart?

Ironically, one of the shows that really touched my heart the most was one that we did remotely. Now, there's only a handful of remote shows; I think maybe six of them are remote. But the one that we did for a Harry Potter collector in England, I was choked up the whole show. She had a learning disability as a child, and that's when her collection started. The book that she started reading when she was kind of finding her way through discovering how to work with her learning disability was Harry Potter. Her mom was really involved, and then her mom passed away, so there were just so many touching points of reference to an absolutely incredibly vast and invaluable collection.

2 Anything this season that blew you away in terms of the items' worth?

We have a collector who is a Lost in Space collector [April 3 episode], and he has transformed his basement into the Jupiter 2 flight deck, including a talking B-9 robot. You could film a series on this, in this basement. It's mind-boggling how much he's invested in his time, and his money, and his energy, and his heart. And it really is an experience. You walk in there and you feel like you are on the flight deck. So that, of course, blew me away. We also have another movie props and costume collector [March 27 episode], and that was not only just vast in its scope, but also in its value. There's not one TV show or movie that the individual viewer won't actually find something that he has in his collection that will make their jaw drop.

3 What did you find fascinating about Jack Condon's Charlie's Angels collection, which is featured in Episode 3?

I would have to say probably he was the most fascinating [thing] about his collection, which turns out to be true with almost all of these collectors. My favorite part of hosting the show is meeting these people because anybody who has a passion that runs this deep, is this invested, they've got a story. And the same was true with Jack, for Charlie's Angels. It was his own story, and his own love for it, and what the Angels meant to him growing up, and collecting and getting the Guinness Book World Record [for the largest collection of Charlie's Angels memorabilia], what that meant to him.

4 I know you've said you don't collect too much of your own stuff. Looking back now, and after doing Live in Front of a Studio Audience, is there anything you wish you had grabbed from the set of Facts of Life or from your character, Blair?

I would say the uniform for sure. ... After hosting this show, I wish I had grabbed just about everything, and had scripts signed, and all kinds of things. ... Nancy McKeon got the sign off Edna's Edibles, the open-and-closed sign that was kind of scorched because it was after the store burned, and she has that up in her kitchen. Every time I see it, I think, "Man, why didn't I think to get that? That would've been perfect." So if not that, I probably would've liked to have gotten an Eastland [Academy] pennant.

5 Tell us about a time when you were starstruck.

My celebrity crush is Steve Martin. The first time I met him, I think I was 12. I met him in the airport, at LAX. I'd seen him a couple of times out to eat at restaurants I've been at. I actually did do an episode of his show Twilight Theater back in the '80s, but he wasn't on set at that time, but he's my celebrity crush. So anytime I see him, I am just absolutely fangirling out.

Greg Norman had a six-stroke lead in the final round of the 1996 Masters and still found a way to lose

SHARK TALE

Greg Norman Relives His Not-So-Great Moments For ESPN's "30 For 30." By Ryan A. Berenz

"God, it's so nice to come here without all the pressure," says Greg Norman on the tee box at Augusta National Golf Club. This hallowed ground, site of the Masters Tournament, is full of ghosts for Norman. He never won the Masters, but his three second-place finishes are legendary for how spectacularly he let victory slip away.

Norman reflects on his career for ESPN's documentary 30 for 30: Shark, premiering April 5. Norman candidly discusses those heartbreaking moments, watches some of them for the first time and returns to Augusta to take another shot at a few strokes that didn't go his way decades earlier.

With his surfer looks and aggressive style of play, the young Australian earned the nickname "The Great White Shark" after his fourth-place finish at the '81 Masters. Most observers were convinced that Norman would eventually have a few green jackets in his closet.

"Greg, in 1986, had the entire golf world's imagination running wild," notes Golf Channel analyst Brandel Chamblee. "But he also was demonstrating that he was going to be plagued by this sort of paradoxical tug-of-war between your technique and your mind."

A combination of Norman's own mistakes and some miraculous shots by his opponents had many wondering if the Shark was snakebit. In 1986, Norman led all four majors through 54 holes, but could only claim victory at the British Open. At the 1987 Masters, Norman lost in a sudden-death playoff when Larry Mize improbably holed a 140-foot chip shot for birdie.

Norman's most infamous meltdown came at the 1996 Masters, where he entered the final round with a six-stroke lead over Nick Faldo. Norman collapsed over the last 10 holes and lost to Faldo by five strokes.

These shortcomings often overshadow the fact that Norman was incredibly successful, both in golf and in business. He held the world No. 1 ranking for 331 weeks, won the British Open twice, won 20 PGA Tour tournaments and was the first person in Tour history to hit the $10 million career earnings mark.

"I'm good with it now," Norman says. "I've recognized it and I can move through that process to get to a point where I can speak very openly and emotionally about it. Would my life be different today if I had a green jacket? No."

FINAL EPISODES!

Ozark's fourth and final season returns to Netflix this month with the remaining seven episodes set to reveal the fate of the Byrde family. Marty (Jason Bateman) and Wendy Byrde (Laura Linney) face trouble on all sides. Spoilers ahead! In the tense and gripping conclusion of the first half, Ruth (the inimitable Julia Garner) discovers the bodies of Wyatt (Charlie Tahan) and Darlene (Lisa Emery). They were killed by Javier (Alfonso Herrera), the ambitious and hotheaded nephew of cartel kingpin Navarro (Felix Solis), for ignoring his demand to stop dealing heroin. An enraged Ruth (Emmy deserving!) busts into the Byrde home toting a shotgun and vows revenge, showing zero interest in Marty's contention that Javier is untouchable. If they want to stop her, she says they'll have to kill her. Meanwhile, Javier wants Marty dead, Navarro wants out of prison and Jonah (Skylar Gaertner) refuses to move back to Chicago. It's a hot mess, and it's difficult to see how the Byrdes can wriggle themselves out of this one. Bateman states that the final episodes answer the big question: "Are they [the Byrdes] going to get away with it, or are they going to pay a bill?" We can't wait to find out.

SERIES FINALE!

The endgame has arrived for spy Eve (Sandra Oh) and assassin Villanelle (Jodie Comer), as the devilishly fun drama wraps up with the series finale episodes "Making Dead Things Look Nice" and "Hello, Losers" (airing back-to-back). Whatever goes down as the show fades to black, fans can be assured that the characters are a pair until the bittersweet end. "Jodie and I were lucky enough to do actually the last shot of the show together, and it's too much of a spoiler to tell you where we were and the setting," Oh says. "I think we were both happy that we were together."

THE FIRST LADY

Sundays beginning April 17 on SHOWTIME
NEW SERIES!

Since this country was founded in 1776, we've had 45 presidents – and, with the exception of one, all have been married at least once, giving us 54 total first ladies over the course of our nation's history. The new Showtime anthology series The First Lady takes a closer look at three of the most memorable: Eleanor Roosevelt (played by Gillian Anderson), Betty Ford (Michelle Pfeiffer) and Michelle Obama (Viola Davis).

Out of such a rich group of women to choose from, why did the powers behind the show pick these three? "The first season is very much about voice. ... It was about these incredible, strong women who had absolute voice before they walked through the threshold of the White House. And then the very thing that happened the minute that they got in was they were told to never open their mouths again," explained executive producer Cathy Schulman. "They had fully independent lives before they ever went into the White House, and then, suddenly, they were told to pick china patterns and stay in the background. In that system, in that situation, in that uncoded job called first lady, how do you find your way to have impact and for your voice to shine again?"

"[Eleanor] was the beginning of two really important social movements, one having to do with women's rights and one having to do with desegregation," continued Schulman. "And so tracking where those initial impulses brought us years later in terms of, frankly, Betty's absolute first open-minded freedom as a woman in the White House, and then, of course, Michelle's living example of what desegregation looked like and, quite the opposite, what it didn't look like this many years later. It was all about showing similarities through time, even sometimes more than the differences."

Unlike the other two actresses, Davis is playing a woman who is still alive and could conceivably watch the show. That changed the way she approached the role of Michelle. "It keeps you up at night, because you don't want to insult them by your portrayal," Davis confessed. "As much as we feel like we know Michelle Obama, and I did everything I possibly could to research – I mean everything – but still, in those private moments, there is still some level of creative decision-making that you have to take. I mean, I don't know how she lays in bed with Barack. I don't know how she would discipline her children. There's just small minutia that I can take creative license with and hope that I'm not insulting her with it, and that's what you have to navigate as an artist."

Though the series may be about these three powerhouse first ladies, the cast does not falter when it comes to the presidential men in their lives. Kiefer Sutherland takes on the powerhouse Franklin D. Roosevelt, Aaron Eckhart plays Gerald Ford and British actor O-T Fagbenle portrays Barack Obama. The series also shows the couples as young people, with a cavalry of talented actors to show that period in their lives. Expect to see facets of these public figures' lives you've never considered before – all told with the finesse befitting what will surely end up being a big draw at awards season. — Taylor Neumann

THE MAN WHO FELL TO EARTH

Sundays beginning
April 24 on SHOWTIME
NEW SERIES!

If you're a fan of the 1976 film The Man Who Fell to Earth, starring David Bowie, there's no need to be wary of this new adaptation – it's more of a continuation of the events of that movie, which was based on a novel of the same name by Walter Tevis. Instead, this new series follows a different alien. Chiwetel Ejiofor (12 Years a Slave) stars as Faraday, whose home planet is in danger – as is Earth itself – if they don't step up and save it. The character of Faraday may come across a little warmer than Bowie did in the original film, and that's on purpose. As executive producer, writer and director Alex Kurtzman explains, "The character of Faraday as an alien becomes a wonderful prism through which we get to view ourselves because every experience for him is a first. He's like a child having a first piece of birthday cake or experiencing color for the first time or looking at the sky or breathing our air. ... Life is very confusing. And for him it's very clear and very binary." And if you're really missing Bowie's character, Thomas Newton? You'll be happy to hear he makes an appearance in this series, played by Bill Nighy.

GASLIT

Sundays beginning April 24 on STARZ
NEW SERIES!

Where have you been, Julia Roberts?!

We haven't really seen the megawatt star in a major film or TV series since Prime Video's Homecoming in 2018. Well, the wait is so worth it as Roberts gives a tour-de-force performance as the real-life Martha Mitchell, wife of former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell, in Starz's eight-episode limited series Gaslit.

"Gaslit is the Watergate story you've never heard before," boasts Robbie Pickering, creator, executive producer and showrunner. "At the center of the show is Martha Mitchell, an unlikely whistleblower who is the first person to bust the whole scandal wide open and ultimately becomes the subject of a vicious White House smear campaign enacted in part by her own beloved husband, Attorney General John Mitchell."

The story centers on Martha, a celebrity Arkansan socialite with a big personality and an even bigger mouth. Despite Martha's party affiliation, she's the first person to publicly sound the alarm on President Nixon's involvement in Watergate, causing both the presidency and her personal life to unravel. Her husband John (played by an unrecognizable Sean Penn) is Nixon's most trusted adviser and best friend. John is temperamental, foulmouthed and ruthless – yet hopelessly in love with Martha. Ultimately, however, he must choose between her and the president.

"We're really making a show about two marriages and how complicity either destroys or binds relationships together," Pickering says. In the case of John Dean (played by Dan Stevens) and Mo Dean (played by Betty Gilpin), in which John served as White House counsel for Nixon during the Watergate scandal, it really bound them together. "I mean, they're married to this day," Pickering says. "And in the case of John Mitchell and Martha Mitchell, it really split them apart and wrecked a really beautiful love between them."

The cast and the writers have masterfully brought a level of humanity to each of these individuals in this thrilling, stranger-than-fiction tale of marriage, love, betrayal and, ultimately, hope.

THE SURVIVOR

Wednesday, April 27 on HBO
ORIGINAL FILM!

For many who witnessed and survived the horrors of Nazi concentration camps, complete liberation did not come with the Allies' victory in World War II. The shackles of post-traumatic stress and survivors' guilt weighed on them for the remainder of their lives. For Harry Haft, escaping the Holocaust came at an unimaginable price.

Interned in the infamous camps at Auschwitz, Haft was forced to fight his fellow prisoners in win-or-die gladiatorial boxing matches for the entertainment of Nazi SS officers. Haft fought more than 70 times, his athletic build and skill allowing him to live another day at the cost of another innocent man's life.

Haft told his story to his son, Alan, who published the book Harry Haft: Survivor of Auschwitz, Challenger of Rocky Marciano in 2006. From that account comes Oscar-winning director Barry Levinson's film The Survivor, a harrowing dramatization of one man's perseverance through an unthinkable situation. Haft's journey toward peace and reconciliation leads him to America, where he pursues a prizefighting career and a shot at the great Rocky Marciano.

"I did not know the Harry Haft story," Levinson says. "I didn't know a lot of the particulars until really getting involved in [the film]. We went to Auschwitz to walk around and see what was there, and spoke to some people who gave us information that we actually did not know. Some of the kind of insights to what might take place just in daily living in that regard, so that we can create as much authenticity."

Star Ben Foster knew taking on the role of Haft would require deep mental, emotional and physical commitment. In addition to losing 60 pounds and spending time at Auschwitz, he completely immersed himself in research. "The Shoah Foundation guided us quite a bit," Foster says. "I watched thousands of hours of Holocaust survivor interviews, spending time with Yiddish experts, learning about this world, the responsibility to honor survivors. And there aren't many left who are still on the planet, those who have survived the camps. Some of their children are still with us. The immense responsibility to represent the complicated nature of this kind of trauma. I just had to not let the fear take hold and get lost in it."

Joining Foster in the stellar cast are Vicky Krieps, Billy Magnussen, Peter Sarsgaard, Saro Emirze, Dar Zuzovsky, Danny DeVito and John Leguizamo. — Ryan A. Berenz

BETTER CALL SAUL

Mondays beginning April 18 on AMC
SEASON PREMIERE!

In September 2013, millions of fans strapped in for the final episodes of the Emmy Award-winning series Breaking Bad from mastermind Vince Gilligan and took the ride of their lives, witnessing the dark, dark descent and crumbling of almost every single character. The only certainty at that point was that one character would see an afterlife, and that was Walter White's "two-bit, bus-bench attorney" Saul Goodman, played by comedy great Bob Odenkirk.

Saul's origin story would be played out masterfully in Gilligan's follow-up Better Call Saul, which is now beginning its sixth and final season. The series returns with 13 episodes divided into two parts – the first seven begin April 18 with two back-to-back episodes, and the final six episodes will air in July.

It's been two years now since we last left Jimmy McGill (Odenkirk) wondering if he's bad for his partner Kim Wexler (Rhea Seehorn) – but Jimmy's long crossed that line, most recently with his dealings with the cartel. While Kim looked to bring down her former employer Howard Hamlin (Patrick Fabian) in a very public and embarrassing way, south of the border Lalo Salamanca (Tony Dalton) survived a brutal assassination attempt – so you know he's going to be seeking revenge this season, and Nacho's (Michael Mando) got some serious explaining to do.

In the final season, the wheels come off and storylines explode in a million directions as we follow Jimmy's final transformation into criminal lawyer Saul Goodman.

"I spend a fair amount of time doing crimes this season. Just stupid crimes," Odenkirk tells. While Seehorn describes the final season as "devastating."

Meanwhile, Mike (Jonathan Banks), Gus (Giancarlo Esposito), Nacho and Lalo find themselves locked into a game of cat and mouse that could have fatal consequences.

"In my eyes, this is our most ambitious, surprising and, yes, heartbreaking season," says Peter Gould, showrunner and executive producer. "Even under incredibly challenging circumstances, the whole Saul team – writers, cast, producers, directors and crew – have outdone themselves. I couldn't be more excited to share what we've accomplished together." – Barb Oates

NOT READY TO SAY GOODBYE?

AMC Networks is introducing three short-form series connected to the popular series this spring and summer via its streaming service AMC+.

Slippin' Jimmy This six-part animated series follows the misadventures of a young Jimmy McGill and his childhood friends in Chicago told in the style of classic '70s-era cartoons. Each episode is an ode to a specific movie genre or theme, from spaghetti Westerns and Buster Keaton to The Exorcist.

Cooper's Bar Led by Rhea Seehorn, this six-episode digital series follows the antics of character actor Cooper, played by Lou Mustillo (Mike & Molly), and the unique group of L.A. natives who frequent his neighborhood bar. Seehorn, who serves as an executive producer and directs on the series, stars as an awful Hollywood executive – "the biggest dick in Hollywood" – who's a regular at Cooper's makeshift watering hole.

FINAL SEASON!

Better Call Saul's Emmy Award-winning Employee Training Video series returns this summer and will teach viewers how to make commercials the Better Call Saul way. The videos will feature cameos from Better Call Saul characters and be penned by Better Call Saul writer Ariel Levine.

8 WE OWN THIS CITY

Mondays beginning April 25 on HBO
NEW SERIES!

It happened in Baltimore, but it could have been anywhere. The Wire creator, showrunner and executive producer David Simon returns to HBO with the six-episode series We Own This City. Based on a 2021 book by Baltimore Sun police reporter Justin Fenton, the drama chronicles the rise and fall of the Baltimore Police Department's Gun Trace Task Force. Expect a multilayered, brutally honest depiction of police corruption and the ramifications of the war on drugs and policies that led to mass arrests in our country's most vulnerable communities. Simon calls the series a coda to The Wire and believes that the policing problems portrayed in that series have only gotten more dysfunctional. Cocreator and executive producer George Pelecanos, who also worked on The Wire, notes that every stakeholder has a voice and viewers will not see a one-sided story that's merely hating on the police. Jon Bernthal, Jamie Hector, Josh Charles, Dagmara Dominczyk, Rob Brown and Wunmi Mosaku star. — Paul Doro

MAYANS M.C.

Tuesdays beginning
April 19 on FX

SEASON PREMIERE!

The Sons of Anarchy spinoff returns for its fourth season after May's Season 3 finale. The series follows the life of Ezekiel "EZ" Reyes (JD Pardo), a member of the Santo Padre charter of the Mayans Motorcycle Club on the California/Mexico border. Once the golden boy chasing the American dream, EZ, along with his brother Angel (Clayton Cardenas) and the rest of Santo Padre, faces retaliation from other charters after a failed attempt to align under one king. Over time the brothers have grown distant from their father Felipe (Edward James Olmos), and that only got worse in the third season as Felipe convinces Gaby (Sulem Calderon) to leave EZ. The new season picks up after an explosive Season 3 finale that saw EZ and Santo Padre on the receiving end of Molotov cocktails tossed by other charters trying to take them down. Things won't get any smoother as showrunner Elgin James promised that the new season will be EZ's darkest chapter yet.

61ST STREET

Sundays beginning
April 10 on AMC
NEW SERIES!

This propulsive crime and legal drama/thriller from acclaimed British playwright/screenwriter Peter Moffat delves into the dark heart of Chicago's infamously corrupt criminal justice system. Moses Johnson (Tosin Cole), a promising Black high school athlete, gets swept up into that system when he is arrested as a supposed gang member. He and his lawyer, Franklin Roberts (Courtney B. Vance, pictured), find themselves in the eye of the storm as police and prosecutors seek revenge for the death of an officer during a drug bust gone wrong, and the case threatens to unravel the police department's notorious code of silence.

Executive producer J. David Shanks is no stranger to the Windy City. He has produced and written for the acclaimed Chicago-set drama The Chi, and his background includes not only acting work in the city, but also a stint as a Chicago police officer. His experiences of living and working there as a Black man in such varied capacities have helped lend him insights into the different participants across the system.

"What we want to do at the end of the day [with the series]," Shanks says, "is shine a light not just on social injustice and police abuse and misconduct, but [also] on some of the systemic issues at play that sort of fuel all of those things."

61st Street is billed as "a two-season event." Season 1 consists of eight episodes. In addition to the first episode's AMC premiere on April 10, the first two episodes will be available on streaming services AMC+ and ALLBLK on that date. New episodes will then roll out weekly and be available on the streamers one week ahead of their linear premieres. — Jeff Pfeiffer

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

April 4-5 on PBS

NEW MINISERIES!

Benjamin Franklin might be the most successful polymath to ever walk the planet. He might also be the most complicated.

Renowned documentary filmmaker Ken Burns examines Franklin, the Founding Father whose face adorns the $100 bill, in this two-night, four-hour presentation. Scholars and historians weigh in on Franklin as inventor, writer, publisher, humorist, scientist, politician, postmaster, diplomat, worldwide celebrity and revolutionary, revealing a man as contradictory as he was brilliant.

"I think the importance of Ben Franklin is that he was able to connect art and science, able to connect the humanities and the technology," says Franklin biographer Walter Isaacson. "He cared about everything you could possibly learn about anything, from art to anatomy to math to music to diplomacy."

Among the innovations credited to Franklin: the lightning rod, bifocal eyeglass lenses, the flexible urinary catheter, the glass armonica musical instrument and the Franklin stove fireplace. He contributed to the advancement of physics, oceanography, demography, meteorology, philosophy and logic, and established the University of Pennsylvania and the Library Company of Philadelphia.

But for all his greatness, Franklin did not live up to the self-evident truth that all men are created equal. Like many of his colleagues, Franklin was a slave owner, and his newspapers profited from advertising in the slave trade. He abhorred slavery, but viewed it as a necessary evil. He supported the clause in the Constitution that counted each slave as only three-fifths of a person, a compromise that allowed the document to be ratified and the United States established. Franklin devoted much of his later public life to abolishing slavery.

Franklin's ability to settle disputes, not only among people but also in his own beliefs, is an art that seems to have been lost in 21st century American politics. "The greatest thing they had to do as founders and the greatest thing we have to do in our lives is to know when to compromise and when to stand true on principle," Isaacson says. "Franklin is a great example of that. He usually gets it right. He knows you can't make a great democracy without compromise."

"You have in Franklin one of the great reconcilers and therefore one of the greatest compromisers, the greatest diplomat in our history because he can hold two opposing things simultaneously," Burns says. "It is a brilliant sign of genius that we are so lucky to have had." — Ryan A. Berenz

13 FALLEN ANGELS MURDER CLUB

Saturday, April 2 and
Saturday, April 9 on LIFETIME

ORIGINAL FILMS!

There are two things needed to get into the Fallen Angels Murder Club — a love for books (duh!) and a criminal record (oh, doesn't that make things interesting?!). Based on the Fallen Angels Murder Club books, Lifetime's new anthology movie series stars Grammy winner Toni Braxton as ex-con Hollis Morgan, who is trying to get her life back on track after being set up for a crime. Hollis and her ex-felon book club members come together to try to solve crimes and — at times — protect themselves from the finger being pointed back at them. The series is equally playful as it taps the talents of a colorful group of ex-cons all helping with the latest murder mystery. Adding to the chemistry of the show is Eddie Cibrian's character Avery Mitchell, who is Hollis' boss at a local law firm. The two enjoy a flirty, fun mentorship (think Moonlighting) as Hollis sets out to solve these crimes.

"The thing that makes Hollis so interesting — and even when I read the book, the thing that really intrigued me about her — is that she just does not quit," tells executive producer Rhonda Baraka. "She really has this strong sense of right and wrong. She has a strong determination to get to the bottom of anything and everything. She's like a bulldog. She does not let go once she latches on to an idea or she wants to prove her point or solve a crime or solve a mystery."

The first film in the series is Friends to Die For (April 2), where a member of the book club is murdered in a scene straight from the previous night's novel. The following Saturday is Heroes and Felons (April 9), where Hollis finds herself at the center of a murder investigation.

Fans of Castle and Murder, She Wrote will enjoy everything about this. — Barb Oates

CYPRESS HILL: INSANE IN THE BRAIN
Wednesday, April 20 on SHOWTIME

Last year, Showtime partnered with rapper Nas' Mass Appeal music company to launch Hip Hop 50. The three-year project is bringing together films, documentaries, series and more to explore the history, personalities and music of hip-hop, which will be celebrating roughly its 50th anniversary as an identifiably separate genre heading into 2023.

The latest documentary airing under the Hip Hop 50 banner is Cypress Hill: Insane in the Brain, a smoke-filled journey across the lives and careers of B-Real, DJ Muggs, Sen Dog and Eric "Bobo" Correa — better known together as the genre-defying hip-hop group Cypress Hill — that fittingly premieres on the 4/20 "holiday" celebrated by the cannabis subculture.

Told through the intimate lens of director/producer Estevan Oriol, who incorporates never-before-seen archival footage and images that he himself shot back in the day, the film tells the story of a brotherhood that has withstood the test of time and created an original and lasting legacy. Cypress Hill's unique sound — influenced by their Latin roots and West Coast upbringing, and built on a movement of social consciousness accompanied by cultivating, smoking and rapping about marijuana — has remained relevant over the past 30 years as their beloved plant has become more accepted in social and political circles.

"We were just being ourselves and talking about the things that were close to us," said B-Real at a virtual press conference for the documentary (during which he wasted little time before lighting up). "We were definitely into cannabis ... in terms of activism and trying to spread the word. ... It was amazing to see how people started opening up their mind toward cannabis at that point in the early '90s all the way to now. ... We were able to become ambassadors to the movement and to the advocacy of legalization." — Jeff Pfeiffer

15 BARRY
Sundays beginning April 24 on HBO
SEASON PREMIERE!

The extremely funny, occasionally violent dark comedy about a hitman trying to become an actor returns for Season 3 almost three years after the Season 2 finale (COVID forced filming to shut down in March 2020). In the new eight-episode season, Barry (Bill Hader) continues his efforts to leave the world of contract killing behind and find success in his new profession, but getting out isn't easy. According to Hader, who is also cocreator and an executive producer, Season 3 deals with the escalating ramifications of Barry's violence and a growing realization of how much he's hurt people. Cocreator, showrunner and executive producer Alec Berg adds that the new episodes are more ambitious and push the series into new places as it continues to address the fallout from Barry's decision to seek a better life. Sarah Goldberg, Anthony Carrigan, Henry Winkler and Stephen Root costar.

16 RAT IN THE KITCHEN

Thursdays beginning March 31 on TBS

NEW SERIES!

Who put fish oil in the dessert? That sure seems like the rat. Or maybe not? TBS' fun new 10-episode cooking competition series is a whodunit of sorts, as a mix of professional chefs and passionate home cooks compete in a series of creative cooking challenges against – you guessed it – a rat. The rat in this case is competing for his/her own take of the money, secretly sabotaging dishes so they can steal the money. Judging what's tasty and what's just plain awful (if the rat succeeds) is Chef Ludo Lefebvre (the French LudoBites creator, author and TV personality). Hosting duties fall to comedian Natasha Leggero. Here Chef Ludo answers a few of our questions.

We weren't even close to guessing who the "rat" was. How surprised are you after each episode, or can you detect immediately?

Ludo Lefebvre: Actually, I never detected the rat immediately. It was very hard to figure out. I found the rat maybe two times in 10 episodes! These were the times when the mistakes were very, very obvious.

What excited you about being a part of this series, and how are you finding the time?

It's a great concept, and you learn about cooking, and Natasha is hilarious. The way she talks about food makes me laugh. In the show we take the food very seriously – myself, the contestants and the producers. It's fun to watch to try to find the rat. It's an educational cooking show but a game at the same time!

When it comes to all of your restaurants, which would be a fan's best chance to run into you these days?

My flagship Petit Trois in Hollywood. I love my little parking lot strip mall restaurant. I love this little restaurant.

Growing up, what was your favorite meal/dish?

Shepherd's pie was made by my mom. I was always excited when she was off work because I knew she was cooking. She made shepherd's pie for my kids when she was visiting from France recently, and I stole the recipe!

How many books would you estimate are in your library to date, and how do you have all of them organized?

I have about 2,000 cookbooks. They are organized by country. I love the look of books organized by color, but then I'd never know how to find which book I'm looking for! – Barb Oates

THE OFFER

Stream On: PARAMOUNT+
Available Thursday, April 28

NEW SERIES!

The Godfather, which recently celebrated its 50th anniversary, is one of the most beloved films of all time. Getting Mario Puzo's book to the big screen was an arduous, at times dangerous undertaking that almost didn't happen. The 10-episode series The Offer recounts the difficult task of producing cowriter/director Francis Ford Coppola's (Dan Fogler) masterpiece. The expansive story, with inexperienced producer Al Ruddy (Miles Teller) at the center, covers everything from Puzo (Patrick Gallo) and Coppola's struggles adapting the novel to casting and budget problems, studio turmoil, an angry Frank Sinatra and intense interest from organized crime. The cast is huge and there are a lot of moving parts, but this behind-the-scenes look at how the sausage gets made is funny, fascinating and full of gossip, intrigue and Hollywood shenanigans. There's plenty of drama as egos clash, but it remains fairly lighthearted and derives a lot of humor from conflict, like when Ruddy demands that a skeptical Joe Colombo (Giovanni Ribisi) read the movie's script in order to convince the mobster that the final product won't be anti-Italian (Colombo isn't much of a reader). No matter how much (or little) one knows about the making of The Godfather, there is a lot to enjoy here. Matthew Goode, Juno Temple, Colin Hanks, Burn Gorman and Nora Arnezeder costar.

TOKYO VICE

Stream On: HBO MAX
Thursdays beginning April 7

NEW SERIES!

In 1993, American-born journalist Jake Adelstein began as a cub reporter for a major newspaper in Japan, eventually gaining rare access to the Tokyo Metropolitan Police press club. For 12 years, Adelstein brought dark stories of extortion, murder, human trafficking, corruption and organized crime to light, until one big scoop put his life in danger. In 2009, Adelstein penned the memoir Tokyo Vice: An American Reporter on the Police Beat in Japan, the inspiration for HBO Max's scripted drama series depicting Adelstein's (Ansel Elgort) experiences in the depths of Tokyo's neon-soaked underworld. Ken Watanabe, Rinko Kikuchi and Rachel Keller also star. Michael Mann is an executive producer and directed the pilot. The first three episodes debut April 7, with two new episodes dropping Thursdays through the finale April 28.

22 BILLY THE KID

Sundays beginning April 24 on EPIX
NEW SERIES!

Henry McCarty, aka William H. Bonney, aka Billy the Kid, has been depicted onscreen before, primarily in movies, including Sam Peckinpah's Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid, where he's played by Kris Kristofferson, and in the Young Guns series, where he's portrayed by Emilio Estevez. He makes the move to television in the eight-episode EPIX series Billy the Kid, where British actor Tom Blyth (The Gilded Age) saddles up as the notorious 19th century gunslinger. Michael Hirst, creator/writer/executive producer of The Tudors and Vikings, handles the same duties here. The series chronicles Billy's journey from a child in New York City to his fugitive days as a young man in New Mexico after his family travels west looking for better opportunities. They are perpetually poor, and he tries different schemes to help them, especially his overworked, underappreciated mother (Eileen O'Higgins): playing poker, rustling cattle, stealing horses, committing robbery. The series covers a lot of ground in its quest to explain how the title character became a famous outlaw, from the death of his father in Kansas and his mother's second (terrible) marriage, to other family tragedies and his early brushes with the law. Familiar Western tropes are plentiful and fans of the genre will find much to appreciate, including excellent production values, striking landscapes, contemptible villains and tense shootouts.

Why Didn't They Ask Evans?

Available April 12

BritBox, the BBC and ITV's streaming service offering top British television content to U.S. and Canadian audiences, recently announced an extension of its production partnership with Agatha Christie Limited, which manages the literary and media rights of the famed mystery writer, and British production company Mammoth Screen for three more adaptations of Christie's works.

Each new adaptation will be steered by the voice of a distinctive director, writer or auteur to bring an entirely new perspective and style to the author's tales.

One of these projects debuts this month and represents BritBox's largest investment to date: Why Didn't They Ask Evans?, which is based on Christie's 1934 novel. The series is written, directed and executive produced by noted actor Hugh Laurie, who also plays a smaller role as Dr. Nicholson, director of a sanatorium. It follows amiable Bobby Jones (Will Poulter) and his whip-smart friend, socialite Lady Frances "Frankie" Derwent (Lucy Boynton). On the hunt for a lost golf ball, Jones discovers a dying man lying at the foot of a cliff, apparently the victim of an accidental fall. With his last breath, the man utters the cryptic question of the series' title. As Bobby and Frankie resolve to honor his memory by playing amateur sleuths with the mission of deciphering, and then answering, his final query, their quest leads them into a dark conspiracy of deceit, betrayal and murder.

Why Didn't They Ask Evans? is filled with witty dialogue, especially from the female characters. Laurie admits that "Frankie Derwent ... was my first ever crush. I wanted to be Bobby Jones, but only to allow me to spend time with Frankie Derwent because I found her absolutely intoxicating, because she's quick and funny and bold and ready to take a chance."

sponsored python hunt. “We wanted Killing It to explore America’s quasi-religious obsession with entrepreneurship and wealth,” Goor and Del Tredici said, “and we also wanted it to be funny. Really, really funny. Plus, we wanted it to have big snakes.”

The expansive story, with inexperienced producer Al Ruddy (Miles Teller) at the center, covers everything from Puzo (Patrick Gallo) and Coppola’s struggles adapting the novel to casting and budget problems, studio turmoil (Matthew Goode plays Robert Evans, the famed head of Paramount Pictures at the time), an angry Frank Sinatra and intense interest from organized crime.
