RANDOM RANTS, RAVES & THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

During the TCM Classic Film Festival: New York Pop-Up x 92NY in January, it was announced that Suits star Gabriel Macht, who put acting on the back burner in 2019, returns for a three-episode arc in NBC's new Suits L.A. The actor, who is extremely private about his family life — he shares two children with wife Jacinda Barrett — gave a brief update about his family and explained why Louisiana Hayride, a 1948-60 syndicated program produced in Shreveport, Louisiana, that ran across radio and television, was Elvis Presley's first TV appearance on March 3, 1955.

Ben and Erin Napier of HGTV's Home Town

he's keeping his kids out of the public eye. Macht explained that he and Barrett decided to take their kids out of school and start homeschooling them, and after COVID they decided to "explore the world" and leave the city. This three-episode arc is maybe all we will get. "I had very little interest in coming back to work as an actor right now, because I spent so much time [doing it] and this was my time to really raise my kids and to do this creative stuff," he told People. Still, he said it made "sense" for him to come back at this time, adding, "[I'll] sort of pass the baton to Stephen [Amell] and the cast in L.A."

■ Where Is The Real "Scamanda," Amanda Riley, Now?

Listeners were left shaken when the 2023 Scamanda podcast exposed mom of two Amanda Riley for spending seven years faking a battle with cancer to receive money and sympathy from others. Her story has been dramatized in ABC's docuseries Scamanda, where her story of cancer changes from inspirational to suspicious when someone sends an anonymous tip to investigative producer Nancy Moscatiello, who then embarks on a five-year-long investigation into Amanda. So where is she now? Riley is in the midst of serving a five-year prison sentence at Federal Medical Center Carswell in Fort Worth, Texas. She began her sentence in September 2022.

5 QUESTIONS

WITH DON JOHNSON OF "DOCTOR ODYSSEY"

By Zhanna Slor

Known for playing Detective Sonny Crockett in the '80s hit Miami Vice, Don Johnson has moved past those bold pastel suits and tossed aside the badge to play the captain of a luxury cruise ship on ABC's Doctor Odyssey, which returns with new episodes beginning Thursday, March 6 — a role he finds very relatable, being a boat captain himself. Here he answers our "5 Questions."

1 What can you tell us about the return of Doctor Odyssey? It [starts with] a two-part episode called "Shark Attack." There's definitely a shark and maybe a few sharks. I can't tell you what happens after that, [but] Doctor Odyssey is meant to be edgier and push the boundaries a little bit. I look at Doctor Odyssey as like a dream. It's like you go into a dream and a whole bunch of things happen and not necessarily anything you've ever seen before.

2 What's it like behind the scenes? Do you all get along? It's a blast. We all get along famously. It's really kind of extraordinary. I love making the show and I love making it with these people. I've got to tell you something about [creator] Ryan Murphy. Ryan Murphy is a genius, not just in what he's accomplished in his shows, but he's a genius in how he reads people's energy. He just gets this world. And in terms of casting this show and casting all his other shows, he is somewhat of a genius. It's amazing.

3 Since '80s fashions are coming back in style, do you think Crockett's look from Miami Vice still holds up? It's kind of perennial. I don't think I've seen a Halloween go by without a Crockett and Tubbs duo somewhere. Of course, then it was done because it was an homage to the characters in the show. And now I think if you showed up at a party like that, they'd say, "Where's your costume?"

4 What was it like working with Elvis, your pet alligator on Miami Vice? Were you scared of him? Well, let me just put it this way: I had a healthy respect for him. Alligators have not evolved one nanosecond since the Mesozoic era. I think David Letterman asked me if he was a trained alligator, and I gave him this response: I said, "When you're a perfect machine, you don't need any training. In fact, you cannot be trained. You've just evolved into perfection." I had a healthy respect for him, and we went through protocols to make sure that I didn't become part of Elvis' DNA.

5 What was the weirdest job you had prior to acting? Well, I sold women's shoes. That's a pretty odd job. I got to be quite good at it because women lie about the size of their feet. I got to be an expert at looking at women's feet and saying, "Hmm, that's not a 6."

Auburn's Johni Broome vs. Duke's Cooper Flagg: a March Madness matchup?

MISSION: SAN ANTONIO

March Madness Makes Its Last Stand At The Alamodome. By Ryan A. Berenz

The final showdown of the men's college basketball season will be deep in the heart of Texas, as the Final Four is at San Antonio's Alamodome April 5 and 7 for the crowning of the 2025 national champions.

Top squads seeking No. 1 seeds include Auburn, Duke, Iowa State, Alabama, Florida, Houston and Michigan State. Auburn was stunned by No. 13 seed Yale in the first round last year, but don't expect an early exit for star Johni Broome and the Tigers this time around. In December, freshman Cooper Flagg and the Duke Blue Devils handed Auburn its first (and as of this writing, only) loss of the season with an 84-78 win in the SEC/ACC Challenge, and a rematch in San Antonio could be in the cards.

The 68-team field is announced March 16 on CBS, and action tips off in Dayton, Ohio, with the First Four March 18-19 on truTV. The Sweet 16 and Elite 8 regionals take place in San Francisco, Atlanta, Indianapolis and Newark, New Jersey.

The women's tournament field is announced March 16 and games begin with the First Four March 19-20. Top contenders include UCLA, Notre Dame, USC, Texas and defending champion South Carolina. The Women's Final Four is April 4 and 6 in Tampa, Florida. Games air across ESPN networks and ABC.

A QUICK
TO WATCH
THIS MONTH

Melissa Joan
Hart and Valerie Loo

1 KILLING THE COMPETITION

Saturday, March 1 on LIFETIME
ORIGINAL FILM!

For over 30 years, we've watched her grow up and enjoyed every second of it. From the smart, quippy young Clarissa Darling to the equally charming (and magical!) Sabrina Spellman, Melissa Joan Hart has etched her name in the annals of pop culture as the ultimate all-American girl ... so why is she so excited to play a murderous mom in Lifetime's terrifying new movie, Killing the Competition?

"I was always terrified of doing drama," Hart tells us. "And then somehow with Clarissa Explains It All and becoming known for comedy, it became a thing that I couldn't do. I can't cry like Demi Moore or Lacey Chabert. I'm an ugly crier, and I kind of bought into that."

When Lifetime asked her to do a movie called Dirty Little Secret (2022) about being a hoarder, she was nervous. "I worked so hard and had so much fun diving into the kind of psychology of hoarding behavior. I loved putting those pieces together and it felt so raw and authentic and I just was like, 'Oh, maybe I can do drama.'"

Inspired by real events, Killing the Competition tells the story of a meddling mom who turns sinister after her daughter is cut from her dance team, resulting in a deadly kidnapping scheme that changes their lives forever. Now having produced (in conjunction with Hartbreak Films, the company she and her mom launched years ago) and starred in multiple successful dramas, Hart welcomed the opportunity to bring this story to life.

"I'm playing a mother who is fiercely protective of her daughter — 'You can do better. You got to be a winner' — and that can get you into trouble when you mix that with a midlife crisis or a hormone imbalance or whatever's going on," Hart shares. "So it was fun kind of figuring out this character and how we get to the moment that makes her snap. It's the perfect time for me to do this movie because I can truly understand a mom who feels unappreciated and is sort of at that crossroads of 'my kids don't need me anymore.'"

With a lifetime of experience in front of and behind the camera, Hart has truly become one of Hollywood's most enduring, consistent and versatile forces, but that wasn't always the plan. In fact, there was a time when she wasn't sure she wanted to work in show business at all.

"It was really a big deal to me to go to college. I enrolled for seven years, but never got to graduate because I went to L.A. and did Sabrina when I was 20, but the whole time I'm like, 'What am I going to do with my life when this ends?'" she shares. "So I took a course in sociology, child psychology, the golden age of East European directors. I went to Italy for a summer abroad to learn about architecture and art in Italy — I was just trying to figure out where I was going."

Luckily, Hart never took the leap away from making movies and TV shows that we love.

"I think around my 30s, I realized, 'Yeah, I like entertaining people,'" she laughs. "I like telling stories whether I'm directing or acting or producing or I'll do craft service on set. I don't care. I just want to be on set. So I realized that it's, 'I'm here now. I'm in it.'" — Gerry Strauss

Matt Paxton

2 FILTHY FORTUNES

Sundays beginning March 9 on DISCOVERY CHANNEL
NEW SERIES!

Matt Paxton has made a living on managing clutter and helping hoarders. He's the bestselling author of Keep the Memories, Lose the Stuff and founder of Clutter Cleaner, a national company dedicated to helping families downsize and clean out their estates. While cleaning, he's found plenty of unclaimed valuables buried in attics, basements and garages. In his new series, Paxton gets seriously grimy as he and his team travel around the country in search of rare, big-ticket items hidden in some of the most cluttered, filthy homes imaginable. His priority is to clean out these properties and sell everything as quickly as possible for an ultimate payday for himself and his clients. A few of the finds yielding more than just excitement include a Mickey Mantle rookie card, John Wilkes Booth's actor bill card, misprinted stamps, rare coin collections, vintage toys, military memorabilia and more.

3 POWER BOOK III: RAISING KANAN

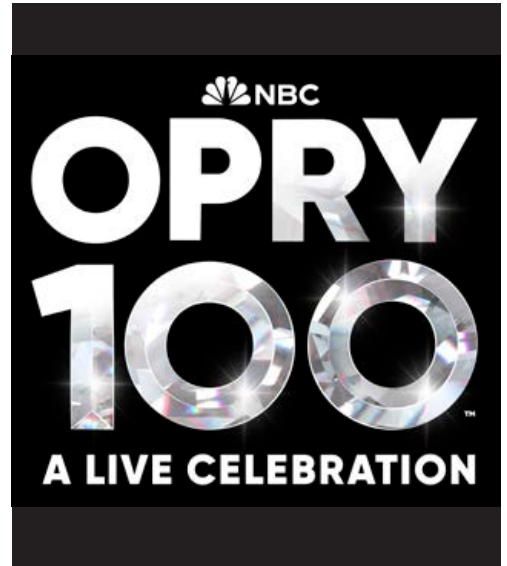

Fridays beginning March 7
on STARZ

SEASON PREMIERE!

In Season 3 of the Power spinoff, Kanan Stark (Mekai Curtis) finally stopped living in the shadow of his mother and assumed control of his life by orchestrating the plan that ended in the deaths of Ronnie (Grantham Coleman) and Detective Howard (Omar Epps). In Season 4, slates are wiped clean for Kanan, Raq (Patina Miller) and the rest of the Thomas family: Kanan's drug business has hit its stride, Raq is free of the enemies who once pursued her, Lou (Malcolm M. Mays) has recovered from his demons, and the Federal Task Force case against Marvin (London Brown) has become shrouded by Howard's corruption. But their fresh start arrives with one very dangerous obstacle looming large: Unique (Joey Bada$$) is alive, and he's more volatile and revenge-hungry than ever, which may upend the lives of the Thomas family.

4 OPRY 100: A LIVE CELEBRATION

5 DARK WINDS Sundays beginning March 9 on AMC SEASON PREMIERE!

Lt. Joe Leaphorn (Zahn McClarnon) served his own justice to the man responsible for his son's death, but it has brought him no peace.

The gritty crime drama set in Northeast Arizona's Navajo Nation in 1971 returns for an eight-episode Season 3, as Leaphorn is reunited with former partner Sgt. Jim Chee (Kiowa Gordon) at the Navajo Police Department in Kayenta. Leaphorn and Chee are called to investigate the disappearance of two teenage boys, and the dearth of physical evidence leads some in the town to suspect a supernatural culprit from Navajo creation stories: Ye'itsoh, a beast who killed and devoured humans. "Ye'itsoh is the translation for 'a big thing that creates fear,'" McClarnon says. "And I think the way it's used today, it's more of a general word for negative energy."

Negative energy has a hold on Leaphorn in Season 3, as guilt over being B.J. Vines' (John Diehl) judge, jury and executioner has him losing sleep. "[Joe's] certainly questioning some of the decisions he's made, and he's questioning where his moral compass is and what those choices may cost him," McClarnon says. "That obviously would put him — or anybody — into a lot of fear and anxiety."

Meanwhile, Bernadette Manuelito (Jessica Matten) has left the Navajo Police to join the U.S. Border Patrol in Southern New Mexico. While investigating an abandoned white van, she encounters a terrified mother and daughter nearby. Manuelito defies orders and pursues her own leads, bringing her to believe one of the area's most influential businessmen has ties to a human trafficking operation. — Ryan A. Berenz

6 NINE BODIES IN A MEXICAN MORGUE Sundays beginning March 2 on MGM+ NEW SERIES!

Told through time-shifts, this new series is a tense thriller that plays out like Lost meets Agatha Christie's And Then There Were None.

A small plane en route to Houston from Guatemala City has a navigation failure, runs out of fuel and crashes deep in a Mexican jungle. The impact kills the flight attendant and seriously injures the pilot, but the passengers are mostly unscathed. When the rescue they're expecting doesn't arrive, the survivors try to ration what little food and water they can gather from the plane's wreckage.

But the jungle might be the least of their problems. Someone is murdering them one by one in mysterious or violent ways. Paranoia and suspicion take hold, they turn against each other, and their true intentions and scandalous pasts come to light.

Who's killing them and why? What caused the crash? And why are the nine bodies kept under high security at a remote Mexican military base?

The ensemble cast includes Eric McCormack (Will & Grace), Peter Gadiot (Queen of the South), Lydia Wilson (Flack) and David Ajala (Star Trek: Discovery). — Ryan A. Berenz

DAVID BLAINE: DO NOT ATTEMPT

Sundays beginning March 23
on NAT GEO

NEW SERIES!

It's in the title for a reason, as David Blaine wants to make darn sure you DO NOT ATTEMPT anything you see — ever — when it comes to his astonishing new series.

"It's pretty intense," he tells us. "All of them defy logic. But nobody should try to reproduce any of the things that they see in this show. That's why it's called Do Not Attempt."

Undisputedly one of the greatest magicians and endurance artists who's ever lived, Blaine has been defying logic and leaving us jaw-dropped since his Street Magic special when he was just 23 years old. He's made a career out of overcoming discomfort with his feats — standing in an ice block in Times Square for 63 hours (he won't do that again), holding his breath underwater for an astonishing 17 minutes, not eating for 44 days — and is a master of endurance and illusion.

Now he's on to a life-changing road of discovery, as he travels the globe searching for people with amazing abilities, who will teach him things he didn't even believe were possible.

"Even though the things are intense, they're magical, they're real, they're beautiful," he explains, and then shows us a clip where he's kissing one of Africa's most venomous snakes (the black mamba); he's later covered in bees, and then you see someone's head on fire.

"There's no rule book to follow, there's no formula, there's no structure," he shares of his tutors. "Many of it has been passed down for generations, or they've worked, refined, practiced, learned, shredded everything and started from scratch." Indeed, a ritual he's all too familiar with. "Many of the things on this series I didn't even know existed. Many of the things I've never even seen before."

It takes confidence, smarts and plenty of experience to also know when to say no and walk away. "There was one that I knew I shouldn't do," he shares and shows a photo of a man in India inserting an instrument into his eye socket. "It's a religious rite, but I called my doctor and asked him if I did this type of thing, would there be any repercussions."

Now after three years working on this show, viewers get to see Blaine react to other people's magic. "This show is me watching people do things that I consider magic that are all real. And I'm the one running away and screaming. It's something I never do. I never share that side."

It's a welcome side to see and an inspiring journey, but don't kid yourself — your heart will be racing.

8 I WAS OCTOMOM: THE NATALIE SULEMAN STORY

Saturday, March 8 on LIFETIME
ORIGINAL FILM!

CONFESSIONS OF OCTOMOM

Mondays beginning
March 10 on LIFETIME
NEW SERIES!

In January of 2009, Natalie Suleman gave birth to eight children with the help of IVF. Already a mother to six children at the time, the now single mother to 14 became a media spectacle. She was publicly scrutinized and humiliated as a media circus emerged making her the poster child for fertility treatments that were spiraling out of hand. Struggling to provide for her family, she succumbed to media offers and eventually became one of the most hated women in the world. She removed her family from the toxic environment and opportunistic people, got a job as a counselor and privately raised her family.

"I am a single mom who has raised 14 kind, humble, grounded, grateful children, who all have a strong relationship and connection to God," she tells us. As the octuplets turned 16 this year, she's trusted Lifetime with telling her story — her way — starting with the biopic I Was Octomom: The Natalie Suleman Story, in which Kristen Lee Gutoskie (The Handmaid's Tale) will play her.

Suleman will also be featured in a six-part documentary series that shares her life today as mom of 14 (her other kids are age 17-23), and her newest role as grandmother, where she and her children reveal a much different life than the world has ever been privy to before.

"I've never in my life wanted to be in the public eye or be 'relevant,' for that matter; nor have I ever considered myself a 'celebrity.' After birthing the octuplets, we were thrust into the public eye, without permission and being unprepared. This was not part of my plan, as I was completing graduate school at the time and already researching Ph.D. programs," she tells us. "I had absolutely no voice, and experienced severe trauma as a repercussion of becoming the target of misplaced hate by millions of people around the world. Now, my family and I, together, have made the decision to take our lives back, and for the first time, have a voice. I personally have chosen to take the vehicle that tried to destroy me and turn it into my source of power. I am not an 'octomom.' I am a mom. My kids and I have defied every single odd against us. We are survivors, and I believe my story will inspire many other women to remain resilient and press on, despite any given circumstance." — Barb Oates

Also back are Walton Goggins as Baby Billy Freeman, John Goodman as Eli, Cassidy Freeman as Amber, Tim Baltz as BJ and Tony Cavalero as Keefe. Megan Mullally guest-stars as Lori Milsap, an old family friend of the Gemstones. Also guest-starring is Seann William Scott as Lori's son and Arden Myrin as his wife. "The Lord spoke to me and said it's time to wrap this sucker up," McBride, the series' creator, said in a statement. "The story this season made the themes, ideas and characters in The Righteous Gemstones feel whole and complete." — Ryan A. Berenz

LBJ and Liz Carpenter share a laugh while promoting her bestselling White House memoir, Ruffles and Flourishes, 1970

10 SHAKING IT UP: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF LIZ CARPENTER

Premiering in March on PBS (check local listings); Streaming on pbs.org

Directed by Peabody Award winner Abby Ginzberg and Liz Carpenter's daughter, Christy, this fascinating film goes behind the scenes to tell the story of the trailblazing political journalist and feminist leader Liz Carpenter, who was the executive assistant to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson — she even wrote the famous words he read after the assassination of John F. Kennedy — and then later the press secretary for Lady Bird Johnson from 1963 to 1969, at a time when women were hardly allowed into the White House.

"She was a colorful character," Christy Carpenter, who coproduced the film, says of why she was inspired to bring her mother's story to the screen. "She had a larger-than-life, Texas-size personality, extremely funny and bold. She was always working, always on the move. My brother and I called her the white tornado."

"She's inspirational in terms of both creative planning and having a long view, laying the groundwork so that the next generation can pick up the sword and keep fighting," adds Ginzberg. "She was an organizer, she was a strategist, and she thought outside the box."

One example of this was Liz Carpenter's push to integrate women into the National Press Club; at the time she began her career as a journalist, they were only allowed to sit upstairs and watch. "She started figuring out who she could get to not give a speech at the National Press Club, and it turned out to be Nikita Khrushchev, in order to bring the point home that if they don't figure out how to make it work with us, we're going to give you a lot of trouble," Ginzberg shares.

"There was a Cold War on, and there was no way that the National Press Club was going to give up on having Khrushchev speak to its members," Christy adds. "Even if it meant the horror of having women sit on the floor and be able to ask questions along with the men." — Zhanna Slor

Chef Anna Gass

12 INSTANT ITALIAN

Mondays beginning March 10 on FYI
NEW SERIES!

Cookbook author, food influencer and chef Anna Gass hosts this hot take on quick-and-easy Italian recipes for the busy modern family. In the new cooking show produced by Rachael Ray and featuring 30-minute episodes of simple dishes for the home cook, Gass tackles well-known Italian dishes then adds various tips and tricks to make them as easy and quick as possible to do.

"I really want to get people in the kitchen," Gass says of the inspiration behind the new show. "During COVID, people leaned into cooking and now cooking is at [a] lower [rate] than it was before. Now that they're back in the swing of things, back in the office, they have kind of abandoned the kitchen."

Gass has written several popular cookbooks using her immigrant family's Italian recipes over the years, and the one way her style has changed is that she is far more sensitive to time — Gass, who is a busy mother herself, is very cognizant of how busy people are, and this is an important feature of the show. "I think people now really want things that they can get on the table quickly because we're all so busy," she says. "When I was younger and really exploring, I would do these very elaborate meals, especially when I was in culinary school. What is really trending now is just getting a delicious meal on the table in as little time as possible."

The show is also beginner friendly. "I want someone to feel when they finished watching my show: 'Wow, she really made that fun and easy, I can do it.' I am just a real person. I'm not a TV star, a movie star that's decided to have a TV show. I've been cooking my entire life. I did go to culinary school, which just kind of elevated my education, but I've really been working with food my whole life and it's absolutely my life passion."

For the busy family caretaker or the career-driven single who wants to add some variety to their dinners, this is the show for you. — Zhanna Slor

15 THE BALDWINS

Sundays beginning Feb. 23 on TLC
NEW SERIES!

Seven children, six animals and an uber-celebrity husband who's never been shy about his opinions? You know things are rarely quiet when it comes to Alec and Hilaria Baldwin, who've been married for 13 years and are now the subjects of an unscripted series. Though there are plenty of laughs and happy times in the TV promo that was shared, their story will also cover the involuntary manslaughter charge that Alec was initially charged with after a gun he was holding discharged on the set of Rust in 2021, tragically killing cinematographer Halyna Hutchins. These charges were dropped, and the lengthy criminal case was dismissed. "A son lost his mom in the most unthinkable tragedy," Hilaria says in the trailer. "This is never something to forget ... and we're trying to parent through it." Viewers will get a glimpse of the ongoing impact of that tragedy, and what everyday life is like for the couple. "The good, bad, wild and everything in between. We hope viewers will connect with our experiences and the love we share," shared Hilaria and Alec when announcing the series. "Filming the show has been an amazing journey, and we're proud to have TLC as a partner in telling our story."

16 TOP CHEF

Thursdays beginning March 13 on BRAVO
SEASON PREMIERE!

You can bet the maple syrup and poutine will be stocked for a new group of culinary contestants as Top Chef makes a rare venture outside of the U.S. for the 22nd season of the beloved cooking competition series. Host Kristen Kish and judges Tom Colicchio and Gail Simmons head to Canada, along with 15 chefs who will get a chance to win the largest grand-prize package in the series' history — including $250,000 cash and $125,000 in flight credits, and the winner gets to headline their own exclusive dinner at the historic James Beard House in New York. Simmons, who lives in Brooklyn, was raised in Toronto, so expect to see some of her upbringing come into conversations this season. Colicchio told us last season when they were in Milwaukee that when he's not filming the show, his favorite pastimes are fishing, gardening and playing the guitar ("mostly finger picking-style stuff like folk rock blues"). Let's hope he's found some fresh water to enjoy as the series highlights the diverse and vibrant culinary scenes and ingredients in Toronto, Calgary, Montreal and Prince Edward Island. As for Kish, her agenda remains focused on being able to explore the city through the eyes of Top Chef. "I'm happy that this is my job and I get to go do this no matter where it is." — Barb Oates

The Studio

Available Wednesdays Beginning March 26

In this self-aware comedy series that pokes fun at Hollywood as only an insider can, Seth Rogen (who is also the director) plays Matt Remick, the newly appointed head of a beleaguered movie studio. As he and his core team of infighting executives battle their insecurities and wrangle narcissistic artists while also trying to please their corporate overlords in the ever-elusive pursuit of making great films, Matt struggles to get his footing in what he thought was his dream job. With an all-star cast — including Bryan Cranston, Catherine O'Hara and Kathryn Hahn — and tons of superstar cameos, such as Martin Scorsese and Steve Buscemi playing themselves, the show attempts to lift the veil on current trends in film production.

Although it's a comedy, it can be a bit tense at times. If the show is any indication, there's apparently a lot of screaming behind the scenes in Hollywood. How much of it is realistic?

Ike Barinholtz, who plays second-in-command to Rogen's Matt, says, "It's pretty honest. I think it is a good mix of the glamour and the fun mixed with the kind of soul-shattering horrible things you have to do when you're the boss of a studio. And I think Seth and [cocreator] Evan [Goldberg] did such a great job of keeping the environment the proper amount of self-aware; they have some moments that are a little tongue in cheek, but it was never like the tongue is poking through the cheek on the other side."

Batting leadoff in this double feature is The Bad News Bears (1976), director Michael Ritchie's beloved comedy led by Walter Matthau as an aging, alcoholic, down-on-his-luck ex-minor leaguer who ends up coaching a team of misfits in an ultra-competitive Little League. Tatum O'Neal, Jackie Earle Haley, Vic Morrow and Joyce Van Patten also star. Next in the lineup is another comedy, the original Angels in the Outfield (1951), in which the Pittsburgh Pirates' brash, foulmouthed abusive manager (Paul Douglas) receives the help of a team of deceased ballplayers, led by a head angel, to win games, becoming a better person in the process.
