EDITOR'S NOTE

Ending The Year With Bryan Cranston!

Bryan Cranston has spent the better part of 20 years dominating our TV screens in roles we can't peel our eyes away from. Ever since his days as the annoyingly obsessive and insensitive Hal in Malcolm in the Middle to his legendary turn as Walter White in Breaking Bad, Cranston's career choices are ones to take note of. This month he gifts us with a doozy in Showtime's Your Honor, playing a judge trying to protect his child, but instead his actions devolve into a very harrowing, nightmarish story. Cranston talks to us about his role, the upcoming holidays and his buddy Aaron Paul (see page 18).

On the holiday front, the grandeur of Christmas With the Tabernacle Choir (see page 14) is appreciated more than ever this year with its celebration of love and hope. Returning for a 17th year, the special features Tony Award-winning Kelli O'Hara and Emmy Award-winning Richard Thomas. Inside, the former Waltons star shares his memories of the event and what it meant to him.

As we wrap up the year and look forward to better days ahead, I'd like to extend our heartfelt wishes to you all for the happiest of holidays and blessings and good health for 2021.

Barb Oates

P.S. Look for the holiday present icons throughout the magazine for feel-good TV movies and specials.

NAT

RANDOM Rants & Raves

Fake, Real And No Audiences

With live sporting events inserting fake noise and cardboard cutouts of fans, I think it helps make the games more exciting, as weird as that is. It really got my husband and I thinking how much we rely on fan reaction when watching or listening to a game, as I'll often watch the game while cooking, and once I hear the crowd roar I look up and tune in to the game. Now I noticed when Saturday Night Live returned, they actually had a live audience for its opening, but shows like Judge Judy don't. Do you know why that is? – Anne

Agree on how fan reaction makes the experience of watching a game so much more exciting! As for "SNL," "The New York Times" reported that the network paid audience members to serve as extras and followed all state regulations as it pertains to working and socially distancing. "Judge Judy," which is shot in Los Angeles, now uses 100% actors as extras for the show – you have to be a member of the Screen Actors Guild to attend this show.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH:

If you could determine the storyline for one of your favorite TV shows, what would you do?

Email us at letters@ntvbmedia.com

What's With The Mail?

Why do I sometimes get my magazine a week in advance, and then the next month I don't get my magazine until the very last day of the month? I like to plan out what I'm going to watch in advance and this gets frustrating. – Mary

Chris Rock hosted the season premiere of SNL with a live studio audience

We actually print and mail our magazines on a consistent schedule, so why some months you get your magazines early and others later can be a mystery to us as well. When we talk to the USPS we are informed that weather delays, as we truck magazines across the country, can impact delivery. During the early days of COVID, the USPS was struggling with worker shortages, but things are improving. Now with all the political mail behind us, we're hoping things continue to improve.

With No Movies, Will There Be An Oscars?

With hardly any movies coming out and a lot of theaters closed around the country, will there even be an Oscars ceremony this year? – Jean

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Academy announced earlier this year that they would be pushing back the deadlines and ceremony date for the 2021 awards. The show, which originally was scheduled to air at the end of February, is now slated for April 25, 2021. Regardless, it will be an interesting ballot with such a slim selection of titles.

"Almost Paradise" Sunsets?

Do you have any information on the TV series Almost Paradise that aired on WGN America this year? Is it returning? – Betty

WGN America seems to have pivoted back to a news-oriented primetime lineup, and the channel opted not to renew "Almost Paradise." TV critic Matt Roush informs us that this happens with many series, and sometimes an independent production like this can find a new home on a different cable or streaming service. "There's a big appetite for breezy escapism these days, so stay tuned. (Although filming in the Philippines may be easier said than done these days, so also be patient.)," Roush says.

Congratulations!

CANDY LAND

Popular Board Game Is Brought To Life With Kristin Chenoweth As The Host. By Damian Holbrook

Sweet dreams are made of this: Hasbro's board game comes to life in a new competition for professional confectioners in Candy Land (airing Sundays on Food Network). After finding ingredients hidden somewhere in Candy Land – say, Lemon Lime Springs or the Gumdrop Mountains – five teams of sugar specialists take on various challenges, creating candied mythical creatures, one-of-a-kind gifts for King Kandy and more. Their work is judged by Spring Baking Championship's winning chocolatier Nacho Aguirre and Food Network Star's Season 6 victor, Aarti Sequeira. Over six episodes (the series finale is Dec. 20), Emmy and Tony winner Kristin Chenoweth guides contestants through the Wonka-worthy interpretations of classic Candy Land locations. More than 100 pounds of chocolate form Chocolate Mountain. Lollipop Woods contains 1,000 suckers. Giant candy canes fill the Peppermint Forest. "When I got on set, I freaked out," she says. "[We] are physically in the game. It looks beautiful." Good enough to eat, actually. "The entire set was edible," the admitted chocolate fan notes, laughing. "You could pick something off a tree and eat it. They didn't want us to, but by the end of the night, just try and stop me!"

Currently, Chenoweth also voices a mouse in HBO Max's The Witches and plays Emma Roberts' aunt in Netflix's Holidate, but this project takes the cake: "I remember [as a kid] my older brother was moving on to Monopoly and Chutes and Ladders, but I was like, 'No, I want to play Candy Land!'" Us, too.

5 Questions With WENDI MCLENDON-COVEY Of ABC's "The Goldbergs"

By Ryan A. Berenz

Wendi McLendon-Covey, who stars as mom Beverly on ABC's The Goldbergs (Wednesdays), was ecstatic to get back to work on Season 8 after missing her TV family while production shut down due to COVID-19. "We can't hug each other like we usually do," she says. "That was hard not seeing everybody for so many months and then not be able to give them a big hug and a smooch when you see them again."

How would the Goldbergs have fared if a pandemic had occurred in 1980-something? "I know that Bev would've been thrilled that her kids had to stay home," McLendon-Covey says. "But would Beverly have worn a mask all the time? I don't know. But I think she would've browbeat her nail person and favorite salon into opening just for her."

McLendon-Covey opened up for this month's "5 Questions":

1 What's been your strangest or most interesting fan encounter?
I have a little fan who just turned 4 years old, and his mom sends me videos of him. He makes me laugh so hard. Every time something happens in the house, he wants to tell Beverly. They got a new vacuum cleaner, and he wanted Mom to make a video of him showing off the vacuum cleaner. He made his own orange juice, and he wanted to mail some of his freshly squeezed orange juice to Beverly on Goldberg Street. Adorable.

2 Can you tell us about a time you were starstruck?
Hayley Orrantia, my TV daughter, she and I got to present an award at the CMA Awards with Olivia Newton-John. I used to want to be Olivia Newton-John for most of my life. So I got very, very starstruck about her.

3 What's a movie that you can watch over and over again?
Ferris Bueller's Day Off or All That Jazz.

4 What's your favorite sports team?
I don't have one. I am not into sports at all, but my husband watches the Los Angeles Lakers quite a lot.

5 What's a job you had before acting?
I worked at Knott's Berry Farm when I was in high school. I worked at a hotel near Disneyland. I worked at a jewelry store for a long time selling bridal sets and engagement rings. And I worked at Cal State Long Beach in the social work department.

Can Clemson Claw To The Top Of A Chaotic College Football Season?

College Football Playoff

Jan. 1 – Semifinal: Rose Bowl, ESPN
Semifinal: Allstate Sugar Bowl, ESPN
Jan. 11 – National Championship, ESPN

The clock is already winding down on a college football season fraught with controversy and uncertainty due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Despite the lack of nonconference games, unbalanced schedules and the coronavirus cloud, the College Football Playoff selection committee should have a fairly decent sample to separate the season's wheat from the chaff. The Clemson Tigers, led by QB Trevor Lawrence, have their sights on a return to the title game after losing to LSU last season. The Ohio State Buckeyes are planning on a repeat playoff trip, and the Alabama Crimson Tide are eager to get back into the final four after missing out a year ago. Other contenders include Notre Dame, Florida, Cincinnati, BYU and Texas A&M.

The Heisman Trophy presentation will likely be a virtual ceremony (the date was still to be determined as of presstime). Despite missing games due to COVID-19, Lawrence is among the favorites for college football's top individual honor, with teammate RB Travis Etienne also hoping to make the list of finalists. Others deserving of consideration include Alabama QB Mac Jones, BYU QB Zach Wilson, Ohio State QB Justin Fields and Alabama RB Najee Harris.

Bowl season will be vastly different this year, with several games already canceled, and those that are still happening will be short on pageantry and spectators.

The four teams competing in the College Football Playoff won't be announced until Dec. 20. The Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California, and the Allstate Sugar Bowl in New Orleans serve as the CFP semifinal games New Year's Day on ESPN. The National Championship game is Jan. 11 at Hard Rock Stadium in South Florida.

A genuine TV personality and all-around entertainer, Regis Philbin, who died this summer of a heart attack, made Guinness World Records history for clocking the most hours on American TV. Naturally effusive and comically cantankerous, the Bronx native regaled audiences with hilarious and unscripted anecdotes and aggravations from his life, eagerly shared alongside Live! cohosts Kathie Lee Gifford (1985-2000) and Kelly Ripa (2001-11), in national syndication. In 1999, already a ubiquitous presence in specials and concerts and on the daily talk show, Regis conquered primetime as the host of ABC's Who Wants to Be a Millionaire, where "Is that your final answer?" became his catchphrase.

Season's Greetings

Favorite Stars From Our Past Warm Our Hearts This Season.

Richard Thomas

Christmas With The Tabernacle Choir

PBS, Monday, Dec. 14 (60-minute version); BYUtv, Thursday, Dec. 17 (full 90-minute version)
Stream on pbs.org and On Demand at BYUtv.org

"Christmas is a big deal in our house. I had a Manhattan-apartment Christmas growing up, so it was simple, but it was really important. It's my favorite time of year. And I'm especially interested and in love with Christmas music," Richard Thomas tells us. No surprise, then, that when he got the call asking him to take part in the 17th annual Christmas With the Tabernacle Choir, an event he watched and adored for years, his response was: "How high can I jump? I'm in. I'm in no matter what."

Thomas takes the stage with Broadway great Kelli O'Hara, where both stage veterans admit that nothing could have prepared them for hearing and experiencing the voices of the award-winning Tabernacle Choir at Temple Square, along with the Orchestra at Temple Square and the Bells at Temple Square behind them.

"Nothing, nothing prepared me for this event. And not just the performance, or the hall, or the people, but the unbelievable backstage, the coordination, the dedication, the volunteerism of the whole thing, and the spectacular way people worked together and supported each other," Thomas gushed. "That was incredible. I've never experienced anything like it. Everybody should have this experience of seeing this. No matter what your faith background is, it's a profound experience if you just let yourself be open to it."

Recorded last year, this year's musical spectacle is set against a country farmhouse and chapel backdrop and is paired with songs and stories that celebrate holiday traditions that have contributed to our country's rich cultural fabric. Thomas' deeply touching and personal reading of Pearl S. Buck's Christmas Day in the Morning will bring you to tears.

"I was a New York theater kid who spent all my summers on my grandparents' farm in Eastern Kentucky in the hills – really gorgeous, beautiful, rural childhood summers. So that was an enormous part of my life," Thomas added. "It wasn't just that I had done The Waltons, I kind of lived The Waltons out there with my grandparents and my cousins and aunts and uncles in the country growing up. ... The Pearl Buck story was a perfect connection to The Waltons and the country, very American, and I think that really worked."

And that it did. As we wrapped our interview, I asked how often he hears from his fans the iconic line, "Good night, John-Boy." Thomas laughed and said with admiration, "If I had a nickel for every time somebody yelled that, even when I'm onstage, when people should know better, it's a constant refrain, and I love it. It makes me really happy."

He, along with the Tabernacle and O'Hara, brings happiness to all this season in this most beautiful performance. "In this year of living upside down ... it's very nice that at a particular time in the evening, people will be able to turn on the television and have the experience of something that has been the same traditionally for 17 years, and that there will be some comfort and sense of stability in that." – Barb Oates

Lindsay Wagner

Christmas On The Range

UPtv, Sunday, Dec. 6

This network premiere sees Lindsay Wagner (The Bionic Woman) pairing with A Martinez (Days of Our Lives) as parents who put aside their differences in an emotional holiday story about healing. "It's a story about forgiveness – forgiveness of others and forgiveness of yourself," Wagner tells us. "When there's what I consider to be a really important truth that can be woven into a story, that excites me. That always has. I guess if anybody looks at the body of my work you'll see I've done issue-oriented movies for a long time. But for me, it's about people transcending the drama, not just surviving it. That's what I liked about this movie."

The film starts with a young woman (Erin Cahill) who is trying to save her family ranch, despite constant threats from her ambitious scrooge of a neighbor Brick McCree (Martinez). When Brick's son (Nicholas Gonzalez) makes a surprising visit, things start to change. The film marked the first time this group of actors worked together, and they formed a special bond on their mountainous set outside of Atlanta.

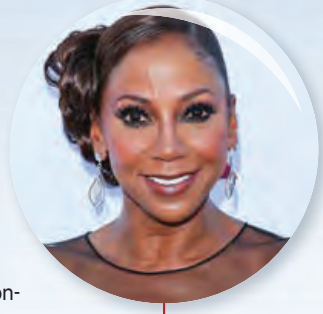

"The four of us that were supposed to be playing family, by the time we left, we were all kind of crying," Wagner said. "Everybody was just so nice and harmonious. ... The whole experience was actually, honestly, one of my favorite experiences in my career, as far as how nice the people were that were making it, and the cast, how we got along. And of course, I liked the story."

As for what's next for Wagner, for now she's enjoying time with family, including her mother, who is in her 90s. She concludes our interview with a heartfelt message for her fans.

"I hope people will take a deep look inside your own heart and not allow what's going on politically, which includes a lot of COVID stuff, to break apart families and friends. Try really hard to preserve the relationships with your loved ones. And if it means just not talking about stuff, don't talk about it. What's more important is that we love each other and we help each other regardless of what we think about things, because first we are people. We are human beings, we are family, we are friends. And if we don't love each other through our differences, we're all lost." – Barb Oates

Holly Robinson Peete

You may remember Holly Robinson Peete from her olden days busting the bad guys on 21 Jump Street from 1987 to 1991. She's decidedly more joyous in the film Christmas in Evergreen: Bells Are Ringing (Hallmark Channel, Dec. 5) as a soon-to-be bride. The movie also stars Rukiya Bernard as Hannah, who steps up to assist with the launch of a new museum while Michelle's (Peete) wedding approaches.

Ben Savage and Marilu Henner

Hallmark also has a new addition to its regular schedule this year – a Hanukkah movie! Love, Lights, Hanukkah! (Hallmark Channel, Dec. 20) stars Mia Kirshner and Ben Savage, who you might remember from his days as Cory Matthews on Boy Meets World from 1993 to 2000. The film follows Christina (Kirshner) as she prepares her restaurant for the busy holiday season, but she soon receives a DNA test telling her she's actually Jewish. This discovery leads to a host of new experiences for her, including family and even romance over those eight nights. Also starring in the film is Marilu Henner, who additionally appears on Hallmark Movies & Mysteries' own Aurora Teagarden Mysteries. She, of course, is a familiar face as well from all the way back to her days on Taxi (1978-83).

Danica McKellar

Christmas She Wrote (Hallmark Channel, Dec. 6) features Danica McKellar from The Wonder Years. When the beloved family series aired from 1988 to 1993, McKellar played the winsome Winnie Cooper. While McKellar has been plenty busy since then, here she's grown up and playing Kayleigh, a romance writer who has her regular column canceled right before Christmas. She decides to go home to spend some time with her family, but while she's there, she's visited by the man (Dylan Neal) who canceled her column in the first place and is looking to make amends.

Lacey Chabert & Blake Shelton

Time for Us to Come Home for Christmas (Hallmark Movies & Mysteries, Dec. 6) comes from executive producer and country music star Blake Shelton. It stars Lacey Chabert, a Hallmark movie mainstay in recent years since her turn on Party of Five back from 1994 to 2000. In the film, five guests are mysteriously invited to an inn to celebrate Christmas. Sarah (Chabert) looks for connections between the guests and, with the help of the owner (Stephen Huszar), discovers something that may change their lives forever.

Tamera Mowry-Housley

Tamera Mowry-Housley is another familiar face, both to those who are regulars to Hallmark's Christmas specials and to those who watched her series Sister, Sister (1994-99). This year she's in Christmas Comes Twice (Hallmark Channel, Dec. 13) as Emily, a top television newscaster who has seen her career dreams come true but still has regrets about "the one who got away" five years before. When the Christmas carnival comes to town, she's given a chance to go back in time and have a second chance – but she only has limited time before she must return to Christmas present.

YOUR HONOR

Bryan Cranston Asks, "Would You Become A Criminal To Protect Your Child's Life?" By Kate Hahn

NAT

Award-winning actor Bryan Cranston is an expert at playing men whose desperation leads them to fall from grace. Or maybe even swan dive. He held us rapt on the crime drama Breaking Bad as brilliant Walter White, a chemistry teacher turned drug kingpin whose descent began after he was diagnosed with a deadly cancer and started a profitable meth-making biz to leave money behind for his family. In the new 10-part Showtime legal thriller Your Honor, he is another father on the edge: a respected, ethical New Orleans judge, Michael Desiato, whose teen son Adam (Hunter Doohan) is involved in a deadly hit-and-run that kills another youth, a mafia scion. Michael believes the vengeful crime family will murder both him and Adam if they learn who was responsible, so he orchestrates a coverup. Things go south fast. We talked to the actor about why he's drawn to playing flawed humans; where this suspenseful, danger-tinged story is headed; and how he and his loved ones are coping in our challenging times.

Why did you want to play Michael Desiato?
Bryan Cranston: What all the characters I've been attracted to have in common is a struggle: They're attempting to do the right thing, but they have ambitions of their own. Walter White, Dalton Trumbo [from the 2015 film Trumbo; a blacklisted screenwriter during the 1950s Red Scare], Lyndon Johnson [Cranston played the 36th U.S. president on Broadway in All the Way and later in the HBO movie adaptation]: They're flawed humans with strengths and weaknesses, secrets and pain – and some joy mixed in. Michael grapples with his oath of office and the private oath he took when he became a parent, to protect his child.

You have a child. Did you feel any personal agony over this story?
Any parent would relate. Once you have kids, there's something outside of yourself much more important. I've asked people, "Would you become a criminal to protect your child's life?" Without hesitation they say, "Absolutely." When I ask, "Would you take another person's life?" there's a line. Where your moral line is – that's what makes this story so attractive.

Michael crosses his line almost right away. How bad does it get?
How bad can you imagine? Michael takes his experience as a lawyer and judge and uses it to think like a seasoned, effective criminal trying to get away with a crime. But one coverup after another comes to the surface. He has to double down on lying, developing alibis and destroying evidence. It devolves into a very harrowing, nightmarish story.

Does Michael have other secrets? And can he keep them all?
Nothing is simple. He had a complex relationship with his now deceased wife, which will come out [as the story unfolds]. He also has a flirtatious relationship with lawyer Lee Delamere [Carmen Ejogo] that may develop into something. Michael is engaged in some nefarious actions – how can he possibly keep that out of his personal life?

What research did you do to play a judge?
I spent a lot of time in New Orleans, in and around the courthouse where we're shooting. I would sit in on a trial, an arraignment, jury selection. Judge Franz Zibilich mentored me. He was instrumental in helping me shape the approach [to the character] from a legal and a human standpoint. You can have legal compassion for [the people who come through your courtroom], but devoting emotion toward that, case after case after case, will bring you down.

How did it feel to wear the robe?
It's cumbersome, clumsy and baggy. At least we're not in England, where we would also have to don white wigs.

The pandemic interrupted shooting and now you're back in New Orleans wrapping up. You also had COVID yourself. Have you been reflecting on that?
I had COVID in March. I got it from my wife Robin; she was surprised she had it. We managed. When we talk to other people, ours was comparatively very mild. I have several people who are 20 or 30 years younger than me who had it far worse. COVID has put a stamp on this city; we're trying to grapple with it. While the crew sets up, the actors stay in separate cubicles with Plexiglass dividers for everyone's protection. It's sad. If you stop socializing, a huge part of your human experience dies, so you have to figure out how to do it respectfully and safely. It's depressing if you never leave your house.

Speaking of socializing, are you in touch with Breaking Bad costar Aaron Paul, who played Walter's student-turned-assistant Jesse, or series creator Vince Gilligan?
Aaron and I have a Mezcal brand, Dos Hombres. If I may be so bold, we're crushing it – in a little over a year it's become the 12th largest-selling Mezcal [a distilled spirit] in America. We talk constantly. We're very good friends and will be for life. A couple months ago we spent time with his family in Idaho, all quarantining. We took [COVID] tests before. Vince is a very good friend. He and his girlfriend and my wife and I plan to spend some time together soon – 6 feet apart.

Social distancing is going to make the holiday season very different this year. What are the Cranstons doing?
We're going to say a lot of prayers. Millions of people are unemployed, homeless, hungry. Let's forgo the present-giving and give back to our society. We'll have a Christmas tree, because the smell of pine evokes warmth and hearth and home, but exchanging presents feels wrong. Robin and I will make donations to food banks, and things of that nature.

You are directing the season finale of Your Honor. What can you hint about it?
It will shock you. Michael Desiato attempts to become someone that he's not, and any time someone compromises their soul, there is a price to be paid.

Behind The Frontier Legend

AMERICAN MASTERS: "LAURA INGALLS WILDER"

American Masters: "Laura Ingalls Wilder"
PBS, Tuesday, Dec. 29
Stream on pbs.org

An Unvarnished Look At The "Little House" Author. By Jeff Pfeiffer

Laura Ingalls Wilder has become known and beloved – especially to a base of fans who call themselves "Bonnetheads" – through the autobiographical fiction of her bestselling Little House series of novels in which she transformed her frontier childhood into an enduring legend beginning with Little House in the Big Woods in 1932. Many people's ideas and images of Wilder and her family – and of the 19th-century American frontier itself – also come from the equally enduring 1974-83 TV series that was named after the third of the author's Little House novels, 1935's Little House on the Prairie.

Yet, despite how Wilder depicted her life in her books, and how she was depicted via the series, there is still much to learn about the woman who, before she even published her first book at age 65, did more than just live as a pioneer as a child. She later in life did everything from writing a column for a farm journal to being a chicken farmer herself. "Laura Ingalls Wilder," the latest installment of PBS' terrific biographical documentary series American Masters, looks beyond the books and the TV show to discover the actual person who has become a pioneer legend sort of in her own making, with her books tending to omit the grimmer sides of frontier life in general, and certain elements of her own life in particular.

"I am constantly amazed how much more there is for me to learn," says Melissa Gilbert, who famously portrayed young Wilder on the TV series and offers insights throughout this special, "because I have had the opportunity to come at the Little House stories in so many different angles in so many different ways.

"As a 9-year-old child I had read Little House in the Big Woods, and then I got the show, and then my focus was the scripts and where we were going with that for 10 years. And we strayed pretty far from the truth of the books, which also strayed far from the truth of the actual experience."

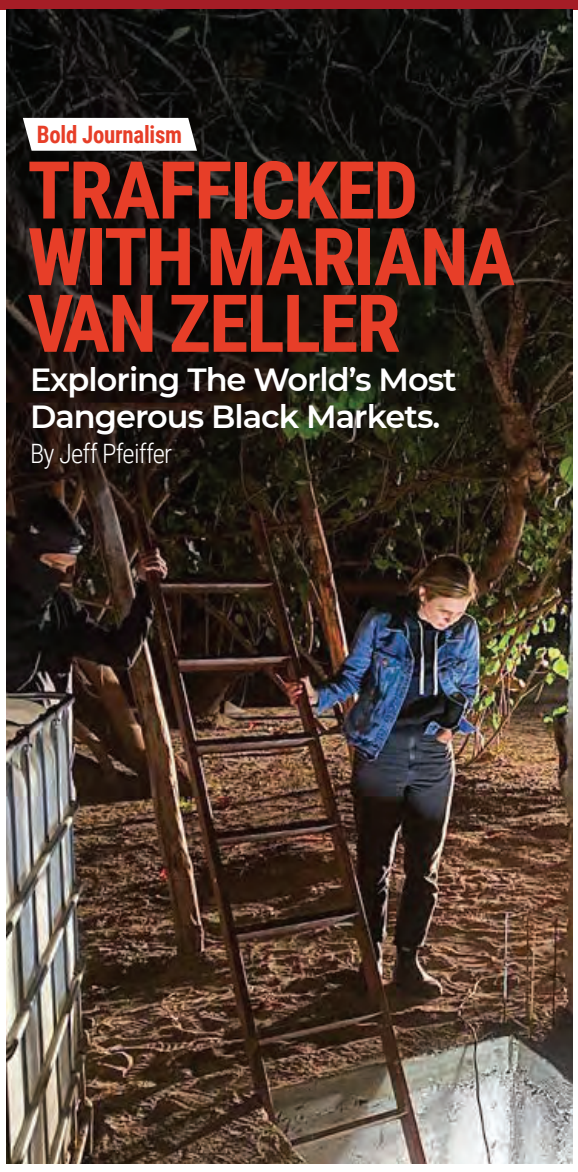

In an effort to uncover that truth, this documentary uses never-before-published letters, photographs and family artifacts to explore the context in which Wilder lived and wrote, as well as the true nature of her personality.

There are also perspectives on Wilder's life and legacy from others besides Gilbert, including Caroline Fraser, who won a Pulitzer Prize for her Wilder biography; Wilder historian William Anderson; Gilbert's Little House costars Alison Arngrim (Nellie Oleson) and Dean Butler (Almanzo Wilder); and others.

"I have done consequently a great deal more research [since the series]," Gilbert continues. "Every time a Laura book comes out, I buy it and read it and try to learn even more of what was going on. And it's really extraordinary to see the whole arc of that family's life."

"Laura's life is extraordinary," agrees Mary McDonagh Murphy, who directed and produced this film. "When I think about what any of us have been through in the test of our pioneer spirits lately, what she endured was really remarkable."

Bold Journalism

TRAFFICKED WITH MARIANA VAN ZELLER

Exploring The World's Most Dangerous Black Markets.

By Jeff Pfeiffer

"People don't realize that black markets are all around us, hidden in plain sight," says Peabody- and duPont Award-winning journalist Mariana van Zeller. "And what fascinates me most is how normal, law-abiding people – people like you and me – get pulled into these criminal worlds."

This is the angle van Zeller is taking in her new series Trafficked, an intriguing mixture of bold reporting from dangerous places and situations along with a certain degree of empathy. The eight-part docuseries explores the complex and often violent inner workings of a smuggling network as the journalist travels inside the world's most dangerous black markets. Van Zeller's investigations, while objective, also show how the people operating these trafficking rings can be more like us than we may realize (or care to admit).

Described as a "mission-driven adventure," Trafficked takes viewers to places rarely seen and spends time with major players behind a host of underground economies – international scammers, tiger traffickers, counterfeiters, cocaine smugglers, fentanyl and steroid suppliers, and pimps. Along the way, van Zeller also meets with law enforcement, ex-cons, fellow journalists and locals caught in the crossfire of the world's multitrillion-dollar shadow economy.

"It's tough sometimes in these situations," van Zeller admits when it comes to balancing the danger of covering this world with the importance of getting the story out there. "We're trying to give as much information as we can as journalists and stay calm as much as possible, but obviously there's always situations where things don't work exactly as planned."

One such situation occurred in the special two-hour season finale (the other episodes are hourlong). In that episode, van Zeller uncovers a lethal supply chain of American firearms being smuggled into the hands of drug cartels and fueling record levels of gun violence in Mexico. Her journey filled with jaw-dropping access to gunrunners, mules, cartel bosses and assassins takes an even more terrifying turn when the son of the world's most notorious drug lord, El Chapo Guzman, is arrested, and the cartel that van Zeller infiltrates decides to violently revolt.

HISTORY'S GREATEST MYSTERIES

Roswell Crash And Other Famous Mysteries Get Another Look In New History Series. By Meredith Ennis

Host Laurence Fishburne

Award-winning actor Laurence Fishburne (The Matrix, John Wick: Chapter 2) hosts History's Greatest Mysteries, which investigates historical mysteries like the sinking of the Titanic, the whereabouts of Ernest Shackleton's "ice ship" Endurance and the search for skyjacker D.B. Cooper. Each episode of the series provides new details about these infamous mysteries, including never-before-released documents, personal diaries and DNA information relevant to the situation.

The Dec. 5 episode, "The Escape of John Wilkes Booth," considers whether John Wilkes Booth actually escaped after assassinating President Lincoln, faking his own death and going on to live under an assumed name.

Over three episodes airing Saturdays Dec. 12-26, the series takes a close look at the 1947 Roswell, New Mexico, crash of what some say was a UFO. In the three-part "Roswell: First Witness," former CIA operative Ben Smith interviews family members of Maj. Jesse Marcel, who was the first person to investigate the accident site. A diary found among Marcel's possessions may contain coded clues about what happened at Roswell, while a compelling trail of evidence reveals that key U.S. Army officers believed the event was, in fact, a UFO incident.

THE MASKED DANCER

Cha-Cha In Costumes

Celebrities Battle It Out On The Dance Floor. By Taylor Neumann

The Masked Dancer
FOX, Sundays beginning Dec. 27
Stream on Hulu & fox.com

If you're one of the millions of people addicted to The Masked Singer, FOX has another show for you this December. Now there's The Masked Dancer, eerily similar to its predecessor except for one crucial detail – the dancing! Celebrities will hit the dance floor to show off their fancy footwork, clad head to toe in elaborate costumes and masks. They'll perform in front of a panel – this iteration has a familiar face in Ken Jeong, as well as Beverly Hills, 90210's Brian Austin Green, Paula Abdul and High School Musical's Ashley Tisdale. And, every episode, based on a combination of panelist votes and at-home studio audience votes, someone will be unmasked. If the idea sounds familiar, it might be because it's based on a popular segment from The Ellen DeGeneres Show.

The show is hosted by comedian Craig Robinson, who knew he wanted to be a part of the series after a visit to the mother ship. "I loved the idea, and then I actually went to see The Masked Singer," he said. "I went to one of their tapings, and then it just made perfect sense. It looked like a ton of fun, and here I am."

Viewers can expect the same level of extravagant and detailed costumes as The Masked Singer, except maybe a bit more mobile to allow for better movement. Robinson teased, "These costumes are vibrant and full of life, and exorbitant. … They're phenomenal. And they all pretty much have one facial expression, which is a whole layer of hilariousness by itself."

BABY CHIMP RESCUE

Going Ape

Baby Chimp Rescue
BBC America, Saturdays beginning Dec. 5

Meet A Couple Whose Love For Chimpanzees Hits Home. By Ryan A. Berenz

Jim and Jenny Desmond have opened their lives, their hearts, their home and even their bed to the youngest orphans of an endangered species, the chimpanzee. There are drawbacks to sharing a bed with chimps, especially the young male named Max. "Yesterday he woke me up by peeing on my head," Jim says. A rude awakening indeed.

The three-part documentary series Baby Chimp Rescue follows the Desmonds and their team as they operate a rescue center in Liberia, West Africa. They're preparing the chimps for life in the wild by teaching them essential physical and social skills, everything from climbing trees and finding food to understanding that venomous snakes are not playthings.

Mischievously cute as they are, each of the baby chimps have had a sad start in life. Their mothers were killed by poachers, and the babies – many with shotgun injuries – were sold in the illegal pet trade. "Every guy you see here is a tragedy," Jim says. "They've all been through a really traumatic experience, and they shouldn't be here. They should be in the forest with their family. That's where they should be. We're just trying to give them the best life we can considering the circumstances they've been put in."

SHAMELESS

The Long-Running Series Begins Its Final Bow. By Taylor Neumann

After nearly a decade, this month Shameless begins its 11th and final season on Showtime, officially making it the network's longest-running series. The Gallaghers promise to be up to their usual tricks as the series returns. When the show left off last season, Lip (Jeremy Allen White) was a new father, Debbie (Emma Kenney) ruled the roost in the absence of eldest sister Fiona (Emmy Rossum, who had left the show), Frank (William H. Macy) was still being Frank, and – in maybe the biggest news – Ian (Cameron Monaghan) tied the knot with longtime love Mickey Milkovich (Noel Fisher) after their stay in prison together.

What could the final season bring? It's impossible to predict what the crazy Gallagher family will do next, but there is one thing viewers can expect when the series returns – the coronavirus. Just because the show is a comedy doesn't mean it will ignore the pandemic, and audiences can expect multiple Gallaghers to come down with COVID-19. Executive producer John Wells said of the decision, "It's impossible to do a satirical comedy about the working poor without addressing what happened and what is going to happen to that community." He elaborated, "The challenge, of course, is making it feel funny because there's not much that's funny about it."

As this last batch of episodes kicks off, we hope that after 11 seasons the show comes to a worthwhile end. Will any of the Gallaghers leave the South Side for good? Could we see Fiona one last time? Will the seemingly invincible Frank finally kick the bucket? We raise a toast from the Alibi to this chaotic show and the family that has kept us enthralled for years.
