EDITOR'S NOTE

An Olympic Return

I'm a fan of the Olympics. I typically don't know much about the athletes, aside from the Simone Biles and Katie Ledecky-like standouts, but I love getting to know them and learning their personal stories throughout the Games, and then cheering them on from my couch. As athletes from around the world prepare to travel to Tokyo to finally get their chance to compete, there are still many uncertainties surrounding the Games, as much of Japan remains (at least as of presstime) under a state of emergency due to COVID-19. While organizers continue to reassure us that the Games will go on this summer as planned, you can't help but wonder if some last-minute surge in numbers will change that. We are so very hopeful that the Games can take place and the world can reunite (at least on TV among the athletes). Inside we've broken down everything we know about this year's Games — how COVID has impacted the Games, new sports, U.S. athletes to look out for and more. Much confusion has been around the Olympic year and whether it was 2020 or 2021. Despite the postponement, the Games will still be officially branded and recorded in history (albeit with a side note) as the 2020 Tokyo Olympics. For you planners, the opening ceremony will be broadcast live on NBC on Friday, July 23, at 7amET (8pm local time in Japan), and the Games will run through Sunday, Aug. 8.

Happy viewing!

RANDOM Rants & Raves

Season 6 will be the last for This Is Us on NBC

Why Wasn't That Movie Included?

Just wanted to let you know I use the magazine to find the premium channel movies that I want to see each month. A month or so ago, Greenland and Wonder Woman 1984 were listed in the daily grids but when I got to the movie section to see times, neither of these movies were listed, even though they are 2020 movies. What's up? – Patricia

Because space is limited, not all networks are listed in the Movies section, so they most likely were on a lower-tiered network of, say, Cinemax or Starz, like ThrillerMax or Starz Kids & Family.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH:

What movie do you recommend everyone should see?

Email us at letters@ntvbmedia.com

What?! "This Is Us" Is Canceled?

After fewer episodes and such random airdates this past season, why did NBC cancel This Is Us? I love that series. – Terry

I can't believe they canceled This Is Us. That's the only series I watched religiously. – Jill

First, it's important to note that the series has one season left before it officially ends. Season 6 will be part of the 2021-22 NBC lineup and most likely will begin in late 2021 or early 2022, as the network promises to air all 18 episodes without breaks. Dan Fogelman, creator of the smash hit, promises that he'll leave no stone unturned with the finale. In an interview he did with Deadline, Fogelman said they would be spending time explaining the Miguel and Rebecca storyline: "getting inside of that relationship, how they came together, then how they separated, then how they found their way back to each other. We've only seen it in brief in like the second season of the show, so this is a real opportunity for us to explore new territory at the very end of our show." As always, the storylines will continue to juggle between the past, present and future, but we'll learn more about that house Kevin builds his mother and what was occurring in the flash-forward: "In that house is where the grownup versions of those kids – Randall's kids particularly – are. So, we'll be living there more, and having more stories to tell there," Fogelman added. From the minute he wrote the first episode, Fogelman always knew how his story would end – we're stocking up on Kleenex now.

Will NeNe Come Back To "Housewives"?

Of all the multiple variations of Real Housewives, Atlanta is still my favorite. Is NeNe Leakes ever returning to the show, and what's the real scoop on why she left the show? – Becky

NeNe (birth name Linnethia) started on Bravo's hit series in 2008. She announced last year that she wasn't coming back for Season 13, and that she had gone through an "extremely long, exhausting, tiring, emotional negotiation." But never say never when it comes to the "Housewives" franchise, as we've seen other ladies (including NeNe) leave and return. For now, however, the reality vet is focusing on The Linnethia Lounge, her new nightclub she opened over Memorial Day weekend, in Duluth, Georgia.

Looking For Real History

So often there is a real shortage of real history on History channel; instead there is junk such as Pawn Stars and American Pickers, which are not at all history. And for National Geographic, there is a shortage of science, archaeology, nature and history, with way too much Life Below Zero and crime shows about drugs and smugglers. Why on Earth do they air these shows over real history? – Leah

It's really all about finding viewers and keeping viewers in a network's targeted age range that reaps the most advertising dollars. All the shows you list are popular shows for these networks, so don't expect those to go away.

Congratulations!

IMPRACTICAL FUN!

Ask just about anyone about the Impractical Jokers and you'll get the standard "I love those guys." The quartet of lifelong friends — James "Murr" Murray, Joe Gatto, Sal Vulcano and Brian "Q" Quinn — have been putting each other in awkwardly embarrassing candid-camera stunts for almost 10 years now via their hit TV comedy series Impractical Jokers. Known as both their stand-up name the Tenderloins and as the Impractical Jokers, their witty banter and endearingly cruel one-upmanship have made them age adverse and just universally appealing. This month, the guys have a lot going on — everything on truTV — beginning with their special The Impractical Jokers Awards (Thursday, July 1), where they will celebrate specific stunts and jokes from the 200-plus episodes of the series. Also on tap is the network premiere of their hysterical hit movie Impractical Jokers: The Movie (July 1), which sees the guys playing teenage versions of themselves as they tell a humiliating high school mishap from 1992. That story sends the guys on a present-day road trip where they engage in hidden-camera challenges for the chance to turn back the clock and find redemption. Lastly, new Season 9 episodes of Impractical Jokers return beginning July 8. — Barb Oates

An Animal Saved My Life

Featuring The Acts Of Some Unlikely Heroes.

By Taylor Neumann

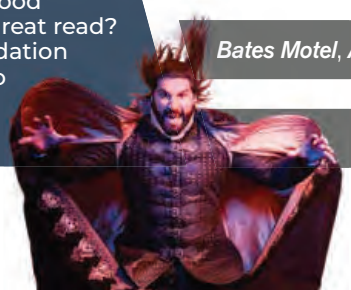

We keep animals in our homes as pets for affection and love, but sometimes, these pets go above and beyond to keep us safe. A&E's new series An Animal Saved My Life (Tuesdays beginning July 6) highlights moments where our beloved animals risk their own lives to save their human's. The series is hosted by Curt Menefee — best known for hosting on FOX during the football season — and features viral videos and surveillance footage as well as interviews with people who have been saved by animal heroes of all kinds. There are some scary situations, but because of the heroism of these creatures, there can be a happy ending.

5 Questions With CAPT. SANDY YAWN Of "Below Deck Mediterranean"

By Taylor Neumann

Below Deck Mediterranean returns on Mondays (beginning June 28) on Bravo, and back at the helm is stalwart Capt. Sandy Yawn, always the devoted leader to her motley group of crewmates. Of course, this season is different from past ones, with the pandemic rearing its ugly head. Yawn calls it her "biggest concern" this year. "The safety and health of our crew and charter guests during the coronavirus pandemic was definitely not an easy task, and this was a world changer, not just in the maritime industry." But despite these challenges, viewers won't be let down; the show promises to deliver more drama on the high seas. We asked Capt. Yawn our "5 Questions."

1 Who would you say is your most interesting new crewmate for this season, and what makes that individual special?

This season I would say that would be Katie Flood (chief stew) and Mzi "Zee" Dempers (deckhand). I appreciated how Katie taught the team her style of service right when she joined the boat. She led by example, showing them the proper setup, and would carry the workload when her team needed rest. I also liked how Zee was eager to learn. He would always carry a notepad and talk to his older brother, who is also in the yachting industry.

2 What's the wildest experience (on camera or off) that's happened to you while at sea?

I ran a vessel called Pure Bliss, and on a night crossing we were off the boot of Italy and I felt a massive vibration. It was a dark night, no moon and pitch black. I had to send the team in the black, dark water to see what had happened while drifting what felt like in the abyss. I was on lookout and could see traffic headed our way. I called the vessels and no one responded. At this point it was all about timing. On that night, we witnessed many strange things at sea. Sometimes one wonders if it's an illusion or if it's real! That was one wild night!

3 What are three things you have to have in your fridge or pantry?

Oranges for fresh-squeezed OJ, eggs and oatmeal! I LOVE breakfast!

4 What's a movie you never get tired of watching?

The Fifth Element and Guardians of the Galaxy.

5 If you were on Jeopardy!, what three categories (actual categories or your own) would you rock at?

World Geography, Islands and World History.

ON TIPPY TOES

FOX has given a series order to dramedy The Big Leap, and sources say FOX executives were thrilled with the pilot they viewed. "Really?" you might say. "And it's about ballet?" Yes, but it's about more than that – it's about a group of characters trying to turn around their downtrodden lives by participating in a reality show with the end goal of putting on a performance of Swan Lake. The 10-episode series is based on the U.K. reality show Big Ballet, and this new version stars Scott Foley, ① Teri Polo and Piper Perabo.

A NEW VERSION

NBC has ordered a pilot for Night Court, a follow-up to the original comedy series that aired on the network from 1984-92. This version will center on Abby Stone, the daughter of the late Harry Stone (played in the original iteration by Harry Anderson, who passed away in 2018) and a judge who watches over the inhabitants of a Manhattan courtroom during the night shift. Abby will be played by Melissa Rauch in her first TV role since The Big Bang Theory ended a few years ago. Also joining her is ② John Larroquette, reprising his Emmy-winning role as Dan Fielding from the '80s series.

SOON TO COME ON STREAMING

He's back … this time on TV. ③ Arnold Schwarzenegger is diving into his first major foray into scripted television with a new series ordered by Netflix. It's a currently untitled action and spy adventure both starring and executive produced by Schwarzenegger. It also stars Monica Barbaro and follows a father and daughter duo who both figure out that they each have been working as CIA operatives for years and really know nothing about each other. Now they're forced to team up as partners, relearning what it's like to be family among their explosive lifestyle. … ④ Sigourney Weaver will star in and executive produce an adaptation of the novel The Lost Flowers of Alice Hart for Amazon Prime Video. Holly Ringland's book comes from Australia and will be filmed there as well, with the series written by Australian writer Sarah Lambert. The seven-part series follows a young girl who moves in with her grandmother after the death of her parents in a mysterious fire. As she grows up, she must contend with the trauma of her family upbringing as well as fight for her life despite current love.

A NEW SPORTS SERIES

FX ordered two seasons right off the bat of Welcome to Wrexham, a series that follows actors Rob McElhenney and ⑤ Ryan Reynolds as they buy and try to rehabilitate a soccer club in Wales. The team is one of the oldest in all of soccer and is struggling to stay relevant despite little success. McElhenney and Reynolds are thrown into the gauntlet as two men who have never run a professional sports team, let alone worked with each other. They hope to reenergize the team and the small town that loves it.

MEET YOUR MATCH

TNT Tees Off With Another Fabulous Foursome.

By Ryan A. Berenz

Turner Sports has found an entertaining formula for its made-for-TV golf events: Have two elite pro golfers team up with superstars from other sports, put microphones on them all, and let them play a round for charity and bragging rights.

Capital One's The Match is back July 6 on TNT at picturesque The Reserve at Moonlight Basin in Big Sky, Montana. Coming off his incredible win at the PGA Championship, Phil Mickelson, winner of six major championships, returns for his fourth appearance in The Match. Joining Mickelson for the second time in The Match is seven-time Super Bowl champion Tom Brady of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. They'll play against the pairing of 2020 U.S. Open champion Bryson DeChambeau and reigning NFL MVP Aaron Rodgers, quarterback of the Green Bay Packers (as of presstime) and former Jeopardy! guest host. Both DeChambeau and Rodgers are making their first appearances in The Match.

There will again be trash talk aplenty, with all players wearing mics and communicating with each other and the broadcast team throughout the entire round. Throw in the side bets the players make with each other and the social media banter from other celebs, and viewers feel like they're right there teeing it up beside some very famous buddies.

And it's all for a good cause: Past events have raised tens of millions of dollars for COVID-19 relief, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, organizations promoting social justice and Feeding America.

The golf is pretty good, too. Brady added another scene to his lengthy highlight reel when he holed an approach shot from 100-plus yards away in the May 2020 event. He then split his pants and had to change clothes between holes, proving even the greatest athletes in history still have their human moments.

ON WITH THE GAMES!

After a long year apart, the world comes together for the Tokyo Summer Olympic Games July 23-Aug. 8. This special section previews the top U.S. athletes and how to watch their stories unfold in what could be the most meaningful Olympics in history.

By Ryan A. Berenz & Holly Friedel

What's New? Seven Exciting Additions To The Tokyo Games.

Carissa Moore, Surfing

1 Surfing

The inaugural Olympic surfing competition will take place on Tsurigasaki Beach on Japan's Pacific coastline. Shortboards will be used in the competition, meaning longboards and bodyboards are prohibited for this year's Games. Surfers not only compete against one another, but also against Mother Nature herself. The athletes will be judged on the type and difficulty of the skills performed, as well as speed, power and flow. Scoring is from 1 to 10 with two decimals.

2 Skateboarding

Olympic skateboarding has two disciplines: street and park. Street competition consists of jumps, handrails, flatground tricks and more executed during the runs. Park takes place in a dome-shaped bowl where athletes are judged on tricks, flow, execution and overall impression within timed runs.

3 Karate

Disciplines include kata and kumite forms. Kata karate involves precise form when executing patterns and movements solo or in pairs. Kumite karate is using kata techniques against an opponent face-to-face. The competition will be held at Nippon Budokan, a spiritual home of martial arts.

4 Baseball/Softball

Baseball (men) and softball (women) return to the Olympics after being voted out of the 2012 Games. Both sports will consist of six-team tournaments, making this the most exclusive Olympic event. Baseball consists of an opening round that determines placing, and a knockout stage with a double-elimination format. Depending on their performance, the teams will then advance to the medal games. The six softball teams play one game against each team and are ranked by a win/loss record. The top teams advance to the gold medal games, with the next two sent to the bronze medal games. The teams with the two worst records are eliminated.

5 3x3 Basketball

Inspired by street hoops, a 3x3 basketball team has four players with three on the court at all times. The games are played on a half-court with only one hoop. The scoring differs from regular basketball: A two-point shot resides outside the typical three-point arc, and a one-point shot is anything before that line. The winner is the team with the most points after the 10-minute game, or whichever team reaches 21 points first.

6 Sport Climbing

Using a variety of hand- and footholds, climbers use their skills to ascend vertical walls, which can feature varying rock faces such as vertical, slab and overhang. The sport contains three disciplines: speed, bouldering and lead. Speed includes two climbers scaling a 15-meter wall quicker than their opponent. In bouldering, athletes climb as many fixed routes as they can within four minutes on a 4.5-meter wall. Lead climbing consists of athletes climbing as high as they can on a wall greater than 15 meters within six minutes.

7 Mixed Events

Gender equality and women's participation are a major focus at the Tokyo Games, and mixed competitions will be seen in swimming, track and field, table tennis and more. A 4x100-meter mixed medley relay swim team consists of two men and two women. Similarly, the 4x400-meter relay race features teams made up of two male and two female runners. Table tennis has created mixed doubles teams.

The Pandemic Games

Even after an entire year of postponement, the Olympic Games still face many challenges due to COVID-19 resurfacing in waves. Japan is determined to make this an incredible, safe and secure event for all those involved.

Tourists and businesspeople are not permitted to enter the country due to Japan facing its fourth wave of the virus. People participating in or with the Olympics are authorized to enter the country but face heavy regulations to ensure safety.

Participants of the Games are required to test negative twice before traveling to Japan. Athletes will be tested daily but are not required to complete a quarantine period. Public transit and restaurants are not permitted for athletes; those involved are expected to eat at the provided Olympic venues and in their hotel rooms through room service or outside delivery. Media and officials are advised to eat takeout alone.

Japan has decided to postpone the decision on whether or not they will change their travel laws and allow spectators at the Games. A state of emergency was extended to June 20 in areas such as Osaka, Hyogo and Tokyo, making these areas high risk. Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga is determined to create a safe Olympic Games by preventing Japanese citizens from coming in close contact with competitors.

Simply The Best

Team USA Athletes Bound For The Podium.

▲ Simone Biles, Gymnastics

Biles, who many call the greatest gymnast of all time, is expected to make more history at the Tokyo Games. In 2016, Biles left the Olympic arena with four gold medals (a record for an American female gymnast) and one bronze. At the 2021 U.S. Classic, Biles landed the dangerous Yurchenko double pike – a vault no woman has ever landed before. She continues to push boundaries for the sport, and now has four gymnastics skills named after her. And at 24, Biles is only getting better with age.

Lilly King, Swimming
Breaststroke specialist King brought home two gold medals from the 2016 Rio Games. She's the world record holder in the 100-meter breaststroke (long course), and is the favorite for gold in the event in Tokyo. Keep an eye on King's fierce rivalry with Russia's Yuliya Efimova.

Caeleb Dressel, Swimming
Dressel could be Michael Phelps' heir apparent for U.S. swimming superstardom. After winning two relay gold medals in Rio, Dressel is almost guaranteed to be the most decorated athlete in Tokyo. Seven gold medals is a real possibility.

John John Florence, Surfing
Florence, who turned pro at age 13, is a two-time world champion and one of the best pipe surfers of his generation. He overcame a torn ACL to qualify for Tokyo, and is a favorite to be surfing's first Olympic men's champion.

Simone Manuel, Swimming
Manuel made history in Rio by becoming the first Black American swimmer to win an individual gold medal, tying with Canada's Penny Oleksiak in the 100-meter freestyle. Manuel's even faster now. She's a clear contender for gold in the 50- and 100-meter freestyle individual events, and a strong link on relay teams.

Allyson Felix, Track and Field
Since making her Olympic debut at the 2004 Athens Games, sprinting legend Felix has won six gold and three silver medals – more Olympic medals than any other American female track and field athlete. She'll look to add to her total in Tokyo for what will be her final Games.

Katie Ledecky, ◀ Swimming

Ledecky's greatness cannot be overstated. At age 15, she shocked the world with a gold in the 800-meter freestyle in the 2012 London Games. She followed that up in Rio with four gold medals, one silver medal and two world records. At age 24, Ledecky could sweep the 200-, 400-, 800- and 1,500-meter freestyle events and have more career gold medals than any female swimmer in Olympic history.

Megan Rapinoe, Soccer
Rapinoe's veteran leadership and competitive fire have Team USA – the reigning FIFA Women's World Cup champion – in prime shape to rebound from its loss to Sweden in the quarterfinal round at the Rio Games.

Noah Lyles, Track and Field
The current world champion in the 200-meter sprint (and the fourth-fastest man ever recorded at that distance), Lyles is making his Olympic debut in Tokyo. The Florida native is already being compared to Jamaican legend Usain Bolt.

Alix Klineman, ◀ Beach Volleyball

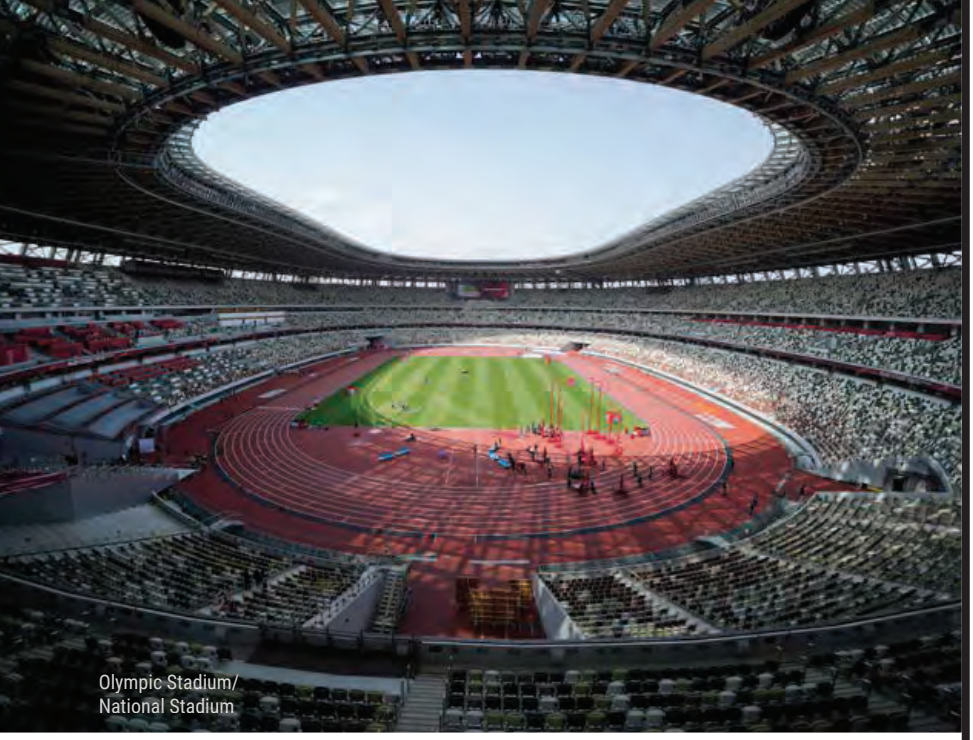

April Ross has a new partner in the top women's beach volleyball tandem for Team USA. At 6 feet 5 inches tall, Klineman is one of the best blockers in the world, and she gives the U.S. an excellent chance to start a new streak of Olympic dominance in the sport.

Nyjah Huston, Skateboarding
Global skateboarding superstar Huston – winner of 13 gold medals at the X-Games – is a master at street boarding and odds are good he'll be taking home gold in that event when it makes its Olympic debut in Tokyo.

Will Claye, Track and Field
Two-time reigning Olympic triple jump champion Christian Taylor is shelved due to injury, but Team USA has a more-than-adequate backup: Claye was Taylor's runner-up at both the London and Rio Games. Expect Claye to seize the golden opportunity.

Sha'Carri Richardson, Track and Field
With her flashy speed and style, Richardson could be Team USA's first Olympic gold medalist in the women's 100-meter sprint since Gail Devers in the 1996 Atlanta Games. Earlier this year, she clocked the sixth-fastest time ever recorded in the women's 100-meter.

Tokyo's Unique Olympic Venues

Tokyo's new Olympic Stadium was completed in 2019, with an official capacity of 68,000. This venue, previously known as National Stadium, will host the opening and closing Olympic ceremonies, the women's gold medal competition in soccer, and various track and field events.

Fukushima Azuma Baseball Stadium will host a total of seven games between the baseball and softball tournaments. Not only is this venue spectacular, but it also contains symbolic importance to Japan, for it represents the area's recovery from a tsunami, earthquake and nuclear disaster in 2011.

Nippon Budokan was created for the 1964 Games for judo and has since become a symbolic venue for martial arts. This year, the venue will make history for hosting the first ever karate event for the Olympic Games.

Tokyo Aquatics Center is nothing short of magnificent, for it has a capacity of 15,000 and movable walls and floors. The adjusting walls and floors allow the venue to easily change the length and depth of the pools.

Gymnastics will be held at the Ariake Gymnastics Center in the Tokyo Bay Zone. The wooden architecture, on both outside and inside, was inspired by the area previously being a timber storage location. The seating inside the arena is made from wood as well.

Totally Tokyo on NBCUniversal

The networks of NBCUniversal are again the place to be for all things Olympics, with more than 7,000 hours of coverage across its TV and streaming platforms.

In a first for the network, NBC airs the opening ceremony live on the morning of July 23. (Tokyo is 13 hours ahead of U.S. Eastern Time.) The opening ceremony will air again that night during NBC's primetime broadcast.

Mike Tirico hosts NBC's nightly coverage from an outdoor studio with breathtaking views of the Tokyo skyline and the landmark Rainbow Bridge. "The chance to use the city as our daily setting will help bring our viewers back in the States even closer to the Olympic experience," Tirico says. Rebecca Lowe is NBC's daytime host.

In addition to NBC's nightly primetime broadcasts, viewers can catch the Games on NBCSN, Golf Channel, USA Network, CNBC and Olympic Channel. Spanish-language telecasts air on Telemundo and Universo. NBCOlympics.com and the NBC Sports app stream live and on-demand competition for pay TV subscribers who log in with their account credentials. Streaming service Peacock offers the free Tokyo NOW channel with live coverage, highlights, interviews and the best stories of the Games.

Olympics Q&A

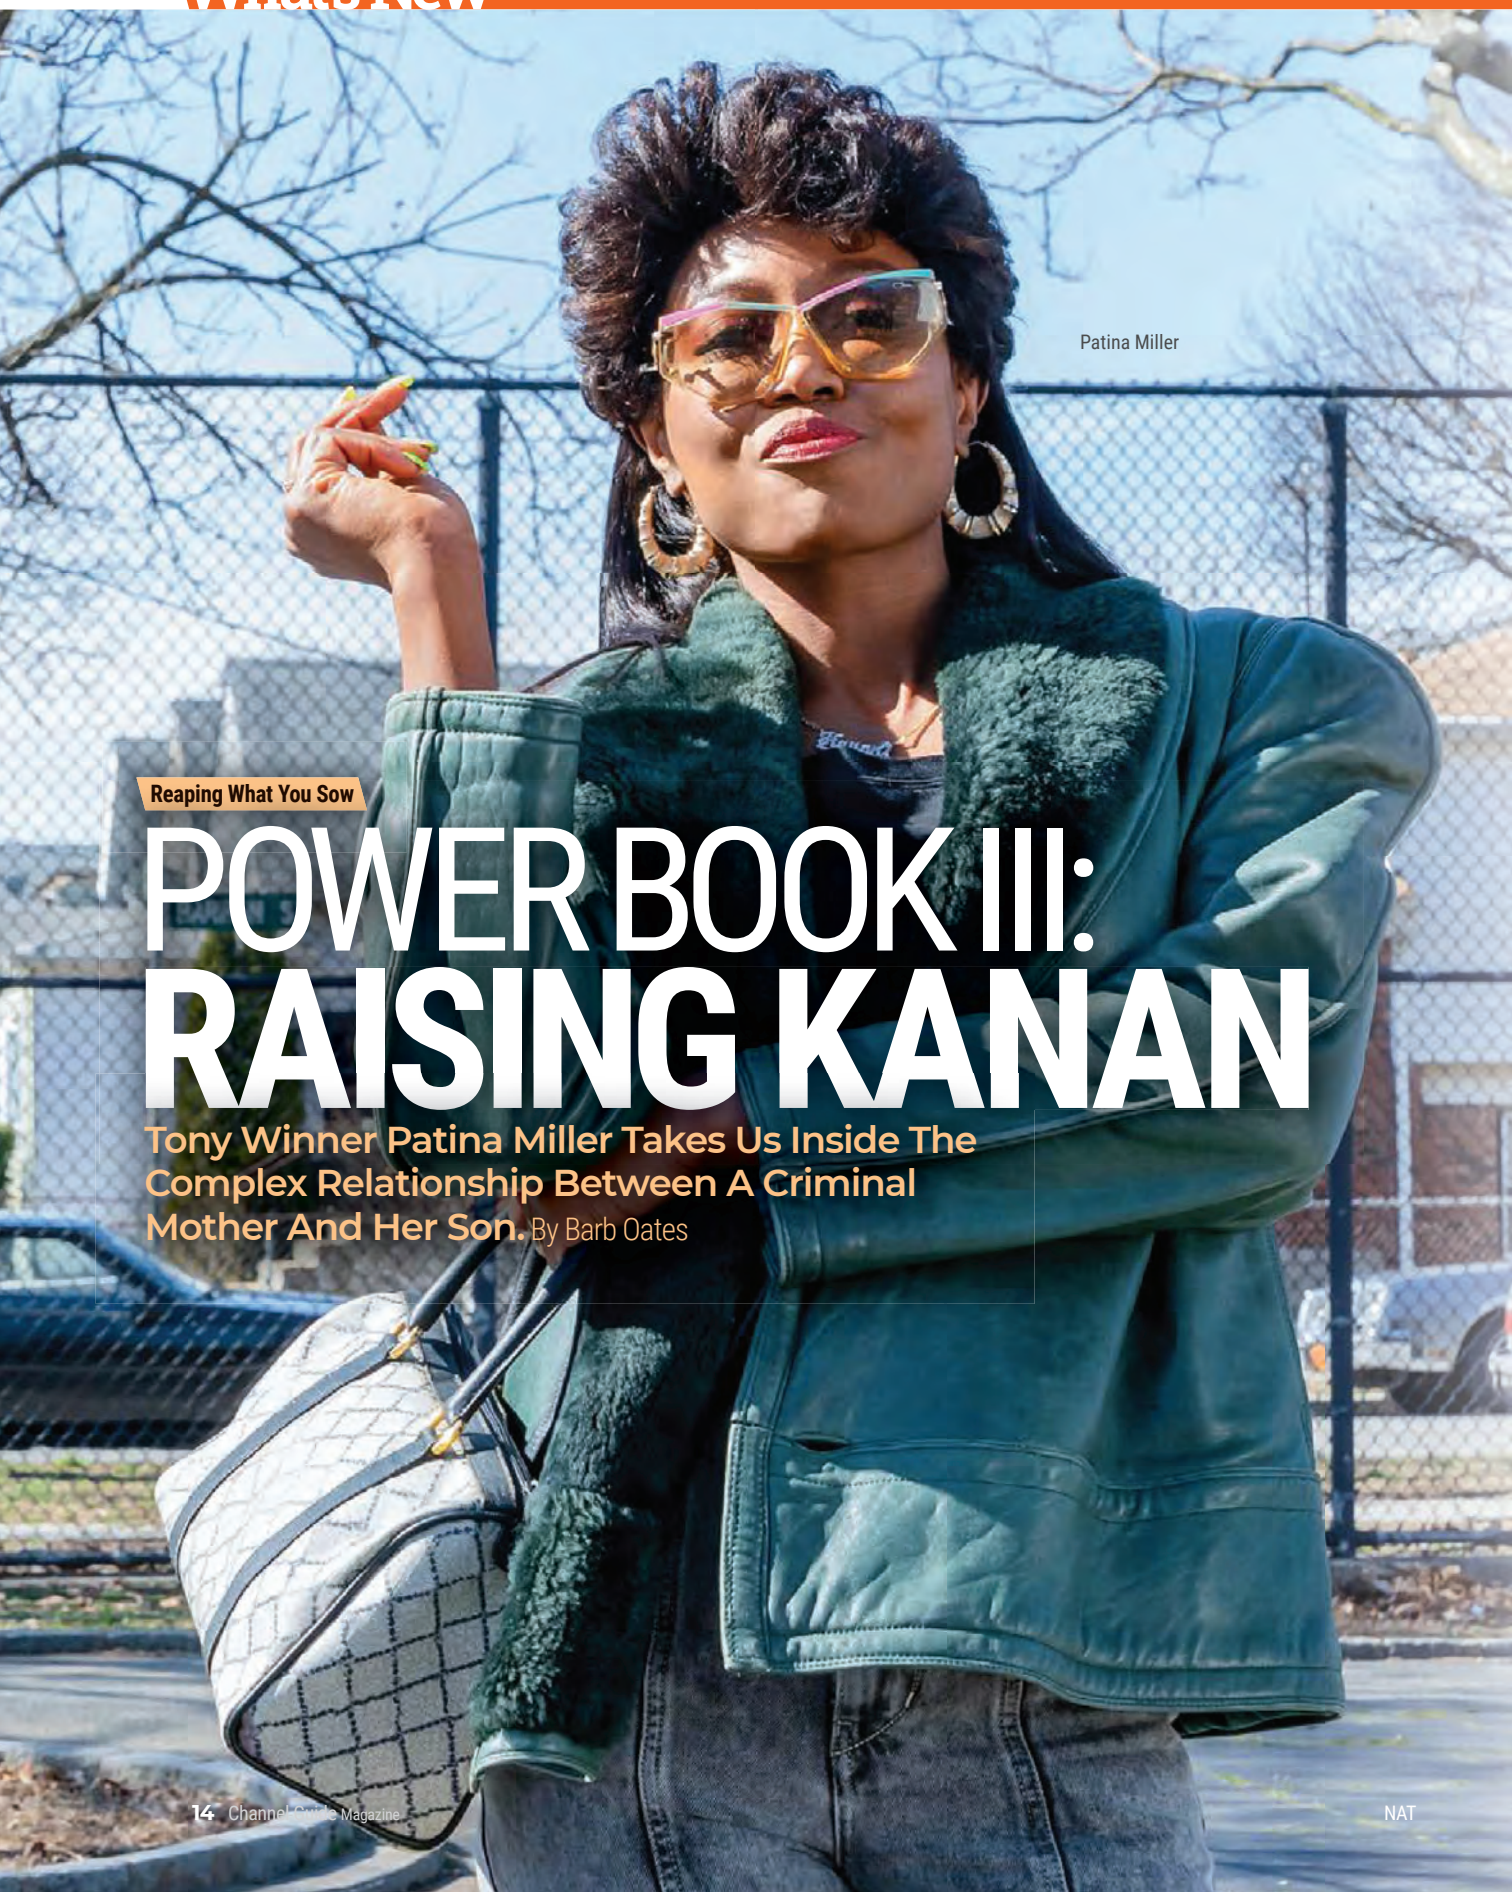

Why are they still calling it Tokyo 2020 if it's now 2021?

Before the Games were postponed last year, the Tokyo 2020 name and logo were used everywhere for merchandise, signage, sponsorships and medals. Replacing everything would be really expensive. From a legal standpoint, the Olympics already own the rights to the Tokyo 2020 name, and reapplying for Tokyo 2021 would've been an arduous process. There's also never been an Olympics with an odd-numbered year attached to it. Tokyo's governor declared, "An odd number is out of the question."

Did athletes who already qualified for the Games last year have to requalify?

No. Approximately 6,500 athletes had already qualified for the Games before they were postponed last year, and they will keep their spots. Some age rules, like boxing's 40-year-old limit, have been relaxed.

Reaping What You Sow

POWER BOOK III: RAISING KANAN

Tony Winner Patina Miller Takes Us Inside The Complex Relationship Between A Criminal Mother And Her Son. By Barb Oates

"Holy cow, we're here," Patina Miller enthuses.

The Tony Award winner and Madam Secretary alum (press secretary Daisy Grant) is referencing getting her turn, finally, in the engrossing Power franchise, Starz's No. 1 drama from Curtis "50 Cent" Jackson and Courtney A. Kemp.

"It's kind of surreal. We started pre-pandemic. We filmed our first episode the end of February and we got into a day of the second [and then the world shut down]. So here we are a year and some change later. To finally be finished, I won't lie, it was an incredible moment," Miller tells.

A fan of the crime drama, Miller actually didn't know where her character's story arc would fit into the Power universe initially. Power (2014-20) shared the story of James "Ghost" St. Patrick, a wealthy nightclub owner who lives a double life as a drug kingpin. In Power you met Ghost's family, love interest and friend-turned-rival Kanan Stark (50 Cent). Power Book II: Ghost was the follow-up about Ghost's son Tariq (Michael Rainey Jr.), but Power Book III travels back to 1991 and the streets of South Jamaica, Queens, where viewers are introduced to a young Kanan Stark, before he became a coldblooded, now-deceased criminal. Book IV and V are also in the pipeline.

"I knew that it was going to be one of the Power franchises and I knew that my character would play a pretty important role. But initially, I did not know that it was the Kanan origin story of how he came to be this ruthless person," Miller explains. "I had no idea until they said, 'Oh, by the way. It's called Raising Kanan and it's about 50 Cent. His character's backstory.'"

Miller plays Kanan's mother Raquel "Raq" Thomas, a cocaine distributor who is running a serious game, while trying to raise her son (who she had at just 15). Raq has big dreams for Kanan. She wants him to go to college, become a CEO and live a life that people around them only dream of. "Your life is my life. You fly, I fly," she tells him, but Raq's a dreamer and Kanan isn't willing to leave his mama.

"We deal a lot with reaping what you sow. That's the overarching theme of our show," Miller says. "She's been in this game a long time. She's had two incredible loves of her life, both who showed her the game. She's super tough. She's had to learn on the fly, as she was surrounded by different people early on. … She doesn't want to be behind a man. She is the sole breadwinner for her family. She's calling the shots. She is the ultimate businesswoman, and when you meet her she has this desire and drive to be the biggest and the best."

For Miller the opportunity to work on a show that celebrated diversity and do fantastic work was truly a blessing.

"I am having the time of my life working with Omar Epps, Malcolm Mays, London Brown, Mekai Curtis. Hailey Kilgore. Everyone's doing such phenomenal work and I am so excited for people to see this incredible group of actors and storytellers," Miller concludes. "It's really a blessing to be able to come to work and work with people who are killing it."

Fans of the franchise know how Kanan's story ended – Book III tells you how it all started. And if you're new to the franchise, it's an equally fine place to start.

Your New Friday Night Syfy Fix

SURREALESTATE

"Schitt's Creek" Alums Tim Rozon And Sarah Levy Headline Syfy's Witty And Spooky Series. By Jeff Pfeiffer

It's been said to be a "seller's market" for real estate lately. But even under such favorable conditions, the owners of the places featured in Syfy's fun and frightening new scripted series SurrealEstate would find it impossible to unload their properties. A leaky roof or a crack in a foundation may not be deal breakers for motivated home buyers; poltergeists, demon dogs and portals to hell in a cellar, on the other hand, certainly are.

That's where Realtor Luke Roman (Tim Rozon) and his elite team of specialists, including newly hired agent Susan Ireland (Sarah Levy), come in. They specialize in handling haunted and possessed houses (Luke, using classic real estate agent jargon, calls them "stigmatized properties") that literally scare would-be buyers away. Investigating and "fixing" the things that go bump in the night, they work to create closure – and closings – even while struggling with their own demons.

It's a great premise, executed quite entertainingly thanks to the style and tone, a combination of tongue-in-cheek humor and horror, delivered by creator/showrunner/head writer George Olson – himself a former Realtor – and the engaging chemistry between former Schitt's Creek costars Rozon and Levy.

"What I got, literally [from] reading the first script, was that there's a certain tone to the show that I've never been a part of before" says Rozon, who also starred in Syfy's recently ended fan-favorite Wynonna Earp. "[That] was really exciting, and I could feel it from Day One of shooting."

Levy agrees, saying, "Just reading it was something different than anything that I have ever done before. I pretty much have done comedy before this, so this was a huge departure. … As tongue-in-cheek as the show can be, and it does have humor infused into a lot of it, it also does have that eerie, spooky feel of a really good horror movie."

It isn't just the events in these "stigmatized properties" that add to the series' creepy ambience, but also the physical spaces of the homes themselves.

"All the locations were actual houses," Rozon explains, "which, again, adds to the tone of the show. And what made me love it so much is that each episode is a new house."

These houses were in St. John's, Newfoundland, where the series filmed, and both stars found the city as a whole gave off a certain feel conducive to the theme of the show.

"What we had been told," Levy recalls, "was that St. John's is a pretty haunted city. Most people that I talked to, even if they weren't 'believers,' everyone had at least one story when they were alone in a house [and] they felt something on their leg, or they heard something, or they saw something. I mean everyone. … A lot of the old houses that we shot in were very 'vibe-y,' for lack of a better word."

"There's a vibe there," Rozon agrees. "There's something going on, and a lot of people experienced a lot of things. I didn't, but I definitely didn't think the people who told me they did were lying.

"I didn't believe in ghosts before this show … now I'm not so sure."

Vacationers Pack Their Emotional Baggage. By Ryan A. Berenz

You know you've had a bad trip when you fly home in a box marked Human Remains.

Creator/writer/director Mike White (Enlightened) is behind The White Lotus, a six-part social satire set at an exclusive Hawaiian resort and following a handful of guests and hotel staff who have a week in paradise that one of them will not survive.

Nicole Mossbacher (Connie Britton) is a high-level tech-company exec who spends her vacation working and rearranging the room's furniture. Her husband, Mark (Steve Zahn), has a chronic case of insecurity. Their daughter, Olivia (Sydney Sweeney), and her friend, Paula (Brittany O'Grady), are cynical college students who show contempt for everyone around them. Teenage son Quinn (Fred Hechinger) would rather play on his phone for the week.

High-maintenance eccentric Tanya McQuoid (Jennifer Coolidge) has come to the island to cast the ashes of her mother on the sea. Before she can work up the nerve to do that, she monopolizes the time of eager-to-please spa manager Belinda (Natasha Rothwell).

Honeymooners Shane (Jake Lacy) and Rachel (Alexandra Daddario) are expecting a romantic getaway in the Pineapple Suite, but a booking error puts them in the equally luxurious Palm Suite. Unable to put the perceived slight out of his mind, entitled Jake relentlessly harasses hotel manager Armond (Murray Bartlett), whose sanity and sobriety are about to snap. Freelance journalist Rachel is in the midst of an identity crisis, since marrying into a rich family has made her career aspirations pointless.

As the guests' paths cross throughout the week and their stories intertwine, secrets are revealed, loyalties are betrayed, tempers boil over, a lot of drugs are taken and someone ends up dead.

THE BEAST MUST DIE

A Powerful Cast Leads This Gripping And Emotional Revenge Thriller. By Jeff Pfeiffer

The Beast Must Die
AMC, Mondays beginning July 12
▶ Stream episodes on AMC+ a week before their AMC premieres, beginning July 5

"I feel like I was pushed to my very limit on this job," says actress Cush Jumbo (The Good Fight) on her lead role as grieving mother Frances Cairnes in The Beast Must Die, a six-part limited series from the U.K. airing on AMC beginning this month. "I think it's the most challenging shoot I've ever been on for many [emotional and physical] reasons."

Viewers of the series may also find themselves pushed to their emotional limits as they follow Frances' journey in this engrossing revenge thriller based on the 1938 novel of the same name by Nicholas Blake. "Nicholas Blake" was the pen name of poet and novelist Cecil Day-Lewis, father of actor Daniel Day-Lewis, and The Beast Must Die was one of a number of mystery novels he wrote under that pseudonym featuring detective Nigel Strangeways (played here by Billy Howle, The Serpent).

The series explores how the depths of suffering sometimes give rise to unexpected consequences. After learning the police investigation into the fatal hit-and-run of her young son Martie has been dropped, Frances takes matters into her own hands. Posing as a novelist researching a new murder mystery, Frances ingratiates herself with the family of George Rattery (Jared Harris, Chernobyl), the man she suspects is responsible, and sets a plan in action to kill him. She's tracked by Strangeways, who has reason to believe his department covered up George's involvement in the incident. He works to both prove George's guilt and head off Frances' plans for revenge before anyone else dies.

The novel was adapted by writer Gaby Chiappe, and Jumbo says Chiappe's script "was so epic in its scale of what an ordinary person goes through [that causes her] to do really extraordinary things, … [of] looking at what happens to a person when they really are able to go off-road and decide how they're going to seek justice in that situation. … I knew that the scale on which Frances was operating was really going to go from zero to a hundred, and I was drawn toward it emotionally."

Chiappe says, "I think we kept the spirit of the book and often had to change the mechanics to make it a contemporary story. One of the main things we did is that in the book Cush's character is actually male, and instinctively that felt rather familiar now. I was personally much more interested in that character as a woman. That was the single biggest thing we did. The rest of it, because it's a very emotionally driven novel, [while] the mechanics about forensics have changed, what's happening internally to people – that journey is still the same."

BACKYARD BAR WARS

Comedian Chris Distefano Hosts Amazing New DIY Show. By Holly Friedel

Backyard Bar Wars is not your average renovation show. This show takes a comedic twist with host Chris Distefano bringing energy like no other. The actor/comedian, alongside contractors Anton and Anthony Downing, assists homeowners in achieving the bar of their dreams and has loads of fun along the way. Whether it is an outrageous backyard tiki setup or a speakeasy-style garage, these spirited hangouts are jaw-dropping masterpieces. Distefano, who's been headlining comedy clubs and hosting his Hey Babe! podcast, doesn't leave the humor behind in this DIY venture. He quickly learned he is no professional when it comes to construction.

What made you want to join this type of production?

Chris Distefano: When they wanted me to host the show, they were like, "What we liked about you is that you look like a guy that knows how to build things, but you actually can't build things." So, I thought, "That's true. Hurtful, but true." So, I would actually like to learn how to build things, so I can just help out. I mean, I have two little daughters and I feel like everybody's always like, "Oh my dad will do it," and I'm not that. I want to be able to do it. The reality is my wife can probably fix more things than I can, which is cool, I'm fine with that, but I can't be this not handy and have two daughters.

What type of budget is there for a show like this?

The show gives each contestant $25,000 to build a bar that they want. So, they have to stay within a $25,000 budget – all supplies, the architecture and all that stuff has to stay within that budget.

Do you have any say in the designs, or is it primarily the homeowners?

We have two contractors that work for the show, Anton and Anthony Downing; they're twin brothers, and each contestant gets a twin brother to help them design. I sometimes chime in with my design ideas that are usually stupid and shot down immediately, but I do try to sometimes throw some ideas in. So far, one of them has made the show. I don't know if it'll make the edit, but it made the show. I was like, "That was a joke, but you guys actually put it up there." But for the most part, they just look at me, and they're like: "Just shut up and just be silly."

Do you have a favorite bar?

I think my favorite one so far was this one woman. She made an alien spacecraft landing, like a downed alien spaceship theme backyard, and that one was pretty cool. It's like her bar is inside a crashed flying saucer.

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

PBS' Biographical Documentary Franchise Is Back After A Long Hiatus. By Jeff Pfeiffer

For those who remember watching In Their Own Words when PBS first aired the biographical documentary franchise's initial batch of three specials in 2015 and were wanting more, the wait is over and was worth it. In Their Own Words returns this month with six new hourlong installments.

The program journeys into the lives and minds of the world's most compelling people using a combination of interviews, archival material, animated content and – as the title implies – the very words of each episode's subject. In 2015, those subjects were Queen Elizabeth II, Muhammad Ali and Jim Henson.

Pope Francis and former President Barack Obama

The number of specials this time around has been doubled, with profiles of Chuck Berry, Jimmy Carter, Angela Merkel, Elon Musk, Princess Diana and Pope Francis. Each entry will reportedly offer unprecedented access to people who are or were close to the featured person, including John Travolta, David Letterman, former President George W. Bush, Hillary Clinton, Garth Brooks, the Chuck Berry family and more.

The new slate of specials begins with a profile on Pope Francis. Also airing this month is the second installment, spotlighting Berry.

Ninth Annual Event

SHARKFEST 2021

Dive Into Six Weeks Of Sharks On Nat Geo.

Chris Hemsworth

SharkFest
Nat Geo, Begins July 5.
Disney XD airs 12 hours of shark programming Saturdays and Sundays July 10-25.
▶ Stream select premiere specials on Disney+

You're gonna need a bigger TV this month when schools of sharks swarm your screen over the course of six weeks during the Nat Geo networks' SharkFest, the annual programming event now in its ninth year. Programming will air across Nat Geo, Nat Geo Wild, Disney XD and the Disney+ streaming service. Nat Geo had not confirmed all of this year's premieres as of presstime, but we did learn of two titles that will have shark fans in a frenzy of excitement.

SharkFest 2021's opening night includes Shark Beach With Chris Hemsworth, an hourlong special featuring Thor and Avengers star Hemsworth, and expert diver and underwater photography/filmmaking legend Valerie Taylor.

Following the actor on a journey of understanding beginning in his own backyard, the East Coast of Australia, Shark Beach is a revealing look at Hemsworth's personal take on how we can both live more safely with sharks and protect them. Along the way he meets with experts like the 85-year-old Taylor, who takes Hemsworth for a dive to experience firsthand her awe of nurse sharks and more.

At a press conference for Shark Beach, Taylor spoke to the importance of specials like this in helping people understand the plight the ocean's apex predators are facing. She ruefully pointed out how few sharks she is now seeing on her dives compared to when she and her late husband Ron began making shark documentaries half a century ago.

"I fear for all life in the ocean, especially sharks," Taylor said. "Many areas in the world where we used to go and film sharks [we now see] not a shark, not one. … I've seen the world [underwater] when it was almost pristine, and you could go snorkeling in the water off the coast of Australia and see a shark. I haven't seen a dangerous, or potentially dangerous, shark while snorkeling for years."

Marine biologist Melissa Cristina Márquez, who is over 50 years Taylor's junior, weighed in with a similar observation when she noted, "Even in my short life, I've seen the changes in our ocean, in our environment – and that's a small lifetime."

Márquez is the host of a new series debuting July 12 called Shark Attack Files, and she also spoke to the allure of sharks that leads to the ravenous viewing of specials during events like SharkFest.

"It seems we love to have monsters, and that's kind of what sharks are to us," she explained. "They're not cuddly, they're not cute, they've got rows of sharp teeth – so we love to fear them.

"As to what we have left to understand of them, a lot. When people think of sharks, they think of, like, great whites, hammerheads, bull sharks – the commonly known sharks. But there are over 500 different species, and even for those famous ones like great whites or whale sharks, there are really big gaps in our knowledge of them. So for quite a lot of those species, we still have a lot of mysteries to uncover, and that's what SharkFest is about, is uncovering those mysteries."

33 Years And Counting!

SHARK WEEK 2021

TV's Original Summertime Shark Event Resurfaces On Discovery Networks.

Discovery's Shark Week, television's longest-running programming event devoted to sharks, returns for its 33rd year with more programming than ever before, airing across the linear Discovery Channel and the discovery+ streaming service.

That programming includes Discovery's first ever shark-themed competitive docuseries, Shark Academy. The series follows eight men and women who will compete to secure a coveted crew spot on shark scientist Dr. Riley Elliott's next great shark-diving expedition. The recruits will work and live together on a research vessel for six weeks as Riley and his team of pros put them to the test to see who has what it really takes.

Shark Week 2021 also features more celebrities diving with sharks, including William Shatner, Tiffany Haddish, Brad Paisley, the cast of Jackass and others.

William Shatner

Shatner's appearance comes in the special tentatively called Expedition Unknown: Shark Trek. Host Josh Gates meets Shatner, his idol and a longtime Shark Week fan, and the two dive with sharks in the Bahamas.

"Sharks are frightening," admits the 90-year-old Shatner, recalling his first ever shark dive. "They have very large mouths and many teeth. I was frightened most of the time … but apparently that was unfounded. When you are in the right hands, they are pussycats. [It's] just a matter of finding the right hands."

As if all that's not enough, this year's event will also feature the return of shark-themed episodes of Josh Gates Tonight; visits to new locations; stunning, never-before-seen images including bull shark hunting behavior, the first ever look down the gullet of a massive tiger shark and the highest-recorded breach of a great white; and lots more sharky goodness to sink your teeth into.

SERENGETI II

Discovery's Acclaimed Docuseries "Serengeti" Returns. By Holly Friedel

The magical land and wildlife of Tanzania are returning to our screens as Discovery Channel is bringing back its popular Serengeti documentary franchise with Serengeti II. This season, we will be reunited with our favorite faces and introduced to new ones.

Kali the lioness, Nalla the elephant, Shani the zebra and Bakari the baboon are revisited as we see their journey in the vast lands of East Africa, alongside new characters such as Aiysha, daughter of the protective cheetah Kikay, whom we met in Season 1, and the young stallion Punda, son of Shani.

Serengeti's debut episode in 2019 was the highest-rated nature documentary since the 2013 debut of North America and reached 6.3 million viewers. Creator and producer Simon Fuller, alongside director and producer John Downer, will once again follow the gut-wrenching realities of surviving as a wild animal in Tanzania, but also follow the touching narrative that revolves around family.

Downer's impeccable filmmaking brings these breathtaking stories to life, accompanied by the returning narration of Oscar-winning and Emmy-nominated actress Lupita Nyong'o. Her storytelling abilities enhance the beauty of the isolated, untouched and striking lands of Tanzania that encapsulate the circle of life happening in the wild.

Finn Cole stars as Joshua "J" Cody

ANIMAL KINGDOM

After The Shocking Season Finale, What's Next For The Cody Clan?

By Barb Oates

Killing off the main character is never an easy decision on any TV drama, but what a wallop it was when cancer-stricken mama queenpin Smurf Cody (Ellen Barkin) got taken out by her grandson J (Finn Cole) in the penultimate season closer of TNT's Animal Kingdom. But we didn't have much time to grieve before we learned that she really stuck it to her boys by leaving her fortune to a mystery woman named Pamela Johnson. With only two seasons left to pick up those bombs and wrap up this story, we went directly to the source – Daniele Nathanson, one of the co-executive producers – for some answers.

First, what an ending to Season 4 — congrats — so many questions now. Smurf's death has really messed things up for the boys. What excites you most about the new direction of the story?

Daniele Nathanson: What excites me most is exactly what you mentioned – what Smurf's death means for the guys. She's the narcissistic sun they've all been orbiting their entire lives. Her loss creates a black hole in the power dynamics of the family. This raises all types of interesting questions: Who will emerge as the leader? How will they keep the business going when Smurf was the one with all the contacts and connections? Will they work together or tear each other apart? Will Oceanside still fear and respect them in the same way now that Smurf's gone?

I read that you are going to jump ahead in the past story narrative for Season 5 — can you explain what you plan to cover a bit there, as well as how much we will be jumping back and forth?

We jump ahead around seven years. We wanted to focus on the relationship between Smurf, Andrew (before he was known as Pope) and Julia, and this felt the best age to do it. We wanted to spend some time showing what it was like growing up with Smurf as a mother. (It's both fun and scary.) In addition to exploring Smurf's relationship with the twins, the past story is about her moving into Oceanside and beginning to establish her crew (comprised of Manny and Jake) as a force to be reckoned with. It's the beginning of her rise as the Queen of Oceanside. We'll check in with the past storyline about 20% of each episode.

Who struggles the most now that Smurf is gone?

They're all struggling in their own way. Some of them may not even know it on a conscious level. That said, Pope and Smurf have always been the most entwined, and his feelings about her are extremely complicated. He hates her and he loves her. So I'd say he's the one struggling with the loss most obviously. Her death will also make him question his own identity. Who IS he without Smurf controlling his every move and telling him what to do and think? All of the guys will be dealing with this question of identity in some way or another.

Where's J's head at now — looking to take charge, walk away?

J's looking to take charge for sure. The only problem is the other guys are as well, so it's not going to be a smooth ride. They also can't just forget that J shot Smurf, even if she was begging for it. That was a major move and the rest of the guys have to come to terms with it one way or another.

Was the Pamela Johnson character always a part of the storyline since Day One? How far back might we need to review to search for some additional nuggets surrounding her story?

Well, I haven't been here since Day One and don't want/can't really speak to the previous showrunner's plan, but we all saw how the fantastic relationship between Janine/Smurf and Pam developed in Season 4 and wanted to show more of it. Also, at the end of Season 4 it was revealed that Smurf left her entire estate to Pamela, so clearly there's a lot of history between the two women that we were excited to explore!

MIRACLE WORKERS: OREGON TRAIL

The Anthology Comedy Returns. By Holly Friedel

Oh, this ride is going to be entertaining! TBS' hilarious anthology comedy Miracle Workers is known for having a delightfully different setting and storyline each season. Season 1 took us to heaven, Season 2 sent us back to the Dark Ages, and the newest season finds us journeying the Oregon Trail in 1844. Each season the series brilliantly reinvents the star-studded cast – Daniel Radcliffe, Steve Buscemi, Geraldine Viswanathan, Karan Soni and Jon Bass – with quite colorful characters.

Viswanathan, who played Eliza Hunter in Season 1 and Alexandra Shitshoveler in Season 2, returns as Prudence Aberdeen. "She is married to Jon Bass' character, Todd Aberdeen," Viswanathan says. "He is kind of the worst, but she is married to him. It's been hard out here for women in the 1800s. He provides for her, but Prudence is very adventurous and ambitious, and she is busting to get out of the confines of her relationship and society. She's just on this journey of wanting to feel free and explore what she's capable of."

And that could be dangerously fun.

"There's a scene where Jon Bass dips me and kisses me, and there was a take where he fully just dropped me," Viswanathan adds. "I feel like that would probably make it on the blooper reel. There is also one where he's soiling his pants while on top of me."

As for other memorable moments, Viswanathan teases to watch for the episode that's set in the saloon. "We had the most extras and I think bigger set pieces, so I'm excited for that episode."

But her biggest struggle this season is just trying not to laugh.

"I would say I break character the most. I find it really hard to not laugh, especially at Steve Buscemi. I mean, all of the cast members make me break, so that's definitely something; this season I am struggling with keeping a straight face."

BIG BROTHER

New Houseguests Move In. By Taylor Neumann

CBS' hit series Big Brother returns for Season 23 this July, and fans can expect a more normal season after last year's All-Stars production was impacted by the coronavirus pandemic. Julie Chen Moonves returns as host – she's been at the helm since the first season way back in July 2000.

As in previous years, houseguests (as the contestants are called) live 100 days in the Big Brother house. Viewers can keep up with the drama at all times via online streams, and of course the show airs three days a week to update the audience on everything going on.

The theme for this season is "BB Beach House," featuring 16 houseguests who will be the most diverse yet – this is due to CBS' 2020 diversity pledge, promising that at least 50% of the cast will be Black, Indigenous or people of color.

Star of the Month: Elvis: "Seeing Double"

TCM, beginning at 5pm

The King of Rock 'n' Roll reigns over Thursday nights on Turner Classic Movies as the Star of the Month in July. Each week, tune in to see Elvis Presley acting, singing, dancing and romancing in an evening of his films that are grouped together by a certain theme. First up, the singer stars as both dark-haired Air Force officer Josh Morgan and Morgan's blond-haired, lookalike hillbilly distant cousin Jodie Tatum in Kissin' Cousins (1964). Then, the King finds the titular problems of 1967's Double Trouble when he plays an American singer who crosses paths with a beautiful heiress and the jewel thieves targeting her in Europe. After that, in Clambake (1967), Elvis plays an heir to an oil fortune who switches identities with a Florida water ski instructor to see if people like him for himself or his money. Finally, in Live a Little, Love a Little (1968), Presley plays a photographer with two drastically different gigs in the same building — one for a Playboy-like magazine, the other for a conservative advertising firm — who tries to hustle back and forth between jobs without anyone noticing his double life.
