EDITOR'S NOTE

Summer Is Here!

Good days are ahead, friends.

The weather is warmer, the world is recovering and we're slowly getting back to business. With subscribers all over our beautiful nation, I hope this note finds you all healthy and on the road to better times.

I know TV is on the road to even better times! For starters, we've got live golf events coming back to the schedule, and more to follow for sure. Inside this issue we've addressed some of your questions (see the adjacent letters), included a section that details where to write a network (see page 40), and have outlined new and exciting shows and movies to watch this month. One highlight includes The Americans star Matthew Rhys as Perry Mason! USA Network's Dirty John anthology series returns this month and this time tells the true story of Betty Broderick, which personally took me back to my younger days. I remember watching the original made-for-TV movie starring Meredith Baxter with my mother, and then seeing Betty on the Oprah show — we were obsessed with this highly publicized tragedy that divided the nation. I talked to Amanda Peet about playing Betty — Amanda is amazing in this — and have shared her thoughts in the feature inside (see page 16).

Lastly, I want to thank you all, again, for sticking with us — your loyalty means more to us than you'll ever know. Please stay healthy and enjoy your summer, family and friends.

Happy viewing!

RANDOM Rants & Raves

Where Is Your Sports Section?

Why did you remove the Sports section and ESPN from your magazine? – Ken

Since there were no live sporting events airing due to COVID-19, we removed the sports listings and dedicated the space to networks that could provide a schedule. Believe us, we can't wait to get back to including a robust sports section soon. It's amazing how much you miss live sports!

QUESTION OF THE MONTH:

What's a movie you recently watched and loved?

Email us at letters@ntvbmedia.com

More Movies, Please!

I'm a big movie fan. The only reason I get your guide is so I can know which new movies are going to air on Syfy and FX. It seems each month there are less and less new movies. I'm a fan of Harry Potter and the Fast and Furious movies, but they don't need to be played every day. Where is Deadpool 2 or the latest Resident Evil? We need more newer movies on TV for the people without internet and streaming services. – Bobby

The Movies section in your magazine includes roughly 3,000 titles every month – there's a lot to choose from. As for what network buys rights to what movie title, that varies considerably. Networks actually purchase a movie window airtime, where their contract could be something like 30 days with 60 plays. The number of plays they have is why you sometimes see the repetition. As for "Deadpool 2" and "Resident Evil," not sure what network will pick those up, but FX and Syfy sure are logical options.

How Many Episodes Is That New Series?

Could you please list the number of episodes that are included in new series with your write-ups? It helps to know how many so a reader can determine if they want to make the commitment or not. Also, I would love to know if a show has a laugh track, because if it does, I won't watch it! – Jill's mom

Thanks for your input, Jill's mom. If we know that information by the time we go to print, we will definitely include it.

What's With The Wrong Airtimes?

I have been a customer for over a year, and just placed a renewal subscription for the 2020 calendar year. My concern is the April 2020 guide being wrong multiple times with shows and movies. I understand movies, shows and events are subject to change, but this has been ongoing especially on channels like TBS and Syfy. Thanks for listening. – Christopher

It's been a rough April and May, with major last-minute and ongoing programming changes. For example, on April 13 CBS issued a release stating "The Amazing Race" was set for a May 20 season premiere, and then on April 29 they changed their mind and replaced it with a new comedic game show "Game On!" hosted by Keegan-Michael Key. It's beyond frustrating, and we apologize.

Put Tim On Your Cover!

I would love to see Timothy Olyphant on your cover. I became aware of him when I began watching Justified. It became my favorite show and my husband even watched it with me. The shows we both agree on are rare, and Justified was on both of our All Time Favorite Series lists. Raylan Givens is also on my list of All Time Favorite Characters. I even had my son (a sheriff's deputy in real life) become a fan of the show. Timothy Olyphant played Raylan perfectly. I would love to know more about him and his projects. I am glad I discovered your magazine. I love the information you provide and look forward to its arrival every month. Keep up the great work. – Debbie

WHOA!

It's "Game On!" For CBS And Other Nets As They Roll Out A Summer-Fun Lineup.

This summer the networks are returning to a sure thing – simple laughs and no viewer commitment (you don't have to watch last week's episode to enjoy this week's) – with the return of several game show favorites and a handful of new ones.

CBS' new Game On! (Wednesdays) is hosted by comedian Keegan-Michael Key and is modeled after the U.K. series A League of Their Own (James Corden is one of the executive producers). The series celebrates the entertainment of sports by pitting two teams of three against one another in ridiculous physical challenges and absurd trivia. The teams are captained by tennis champion and entrepreneur Venus Williams and Super Bowl champion Rob Gronkowski, alongside comedians Bobby Lee and Ian Karmel, as well as rotating sports stars, comedians and celebrities. (BTW – CBS scrapped its original plans for the season premiere of The Amazing Race in favor of this.)

FOX is also in on the fun action with its new Ultimate Tag (Wednesdays) that is the brainchild of the NFL's Watt brothers (J.J., T.J. and Derek) and finds contestants trying to evade elite athlete Taggers in the traditional schoolyard game. And ABC rolled out a robust lineup of season returns to keep you plenty entertained almost every day of the week.

WHERE'S ALL THE FUN?

Here's just a snapshot of your daily options for fun and games:

- Celebrity Family Feud (Sundays on ABC)
- Press Your Luck (Sundays on ABC)
- Match Game (Sundays on ABC)
- Titan Games (Mondays on NBC)
- Game On! (Wednesdays on CBS)
- Ultimate Tag (Wednesdays on FOX)
- To Tell the Truth (Thursdays on ABC)
- Holey Moley II: The Sequel (Thursdays on ABC)

5 Questions With STACY KEACH Of CBS' "Man With A Plan"

By Taylor Neumann

The laughs keep coming! New episodes of Man With a Plan continue on CBS Thursday nights. "We started [filming] in August and we finished before Christmas last year," says Stacy Keach, who plays Joe, the opinionated father of Matt LeBlanc's Adam Burns. He gushes of the series, "It's a fun show to do. I love working with the cast; they're all wonderful. Matt, he's our leader and it all emanates from him. He's such a great guy, and he knows his way around comedy, my goodness!" He calls his character Joe a "ball breaker" and "an old-fashioned tough nut" with a soft spot for his wife, Bev (played by Swoosie Kurtz). We're happy to report that Keach himself is nothing of the sort – in fact, he was downright cheerful as he chatted with us and answered our "5 Questions."

Stacy Keach: Man With A Plan: © 2018 CBS Broadcasting, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Credit: Matthias Clamer/CBS.

1 If your TV could only have three shows, what would they be?

It would be Homeland, Man With a Plan and American Greed. We're bingeing on Homeland now. When it first came out, I didn't watch it, and I'm so glad I didn't, because we're having a great time now.

2 What three items do you need to have in your fridge or pantry?

I would say Oreo cookies, Diet Coke and Cool Whip.

3 Have you ever been starstruck?

When I was a young guy, I had the great privilege and pleasure of meeting Laurence Olivier. [I also] spoke with Marlon Brando on the telephone.

4 What would you be doing if you weren't an actor?

I'd be a musician. I play the keyboard, [and] I composed music. Not many people know that about me, and I'm hopefully going to let that cat out of the bag sometime during the course of this year.

5 If you could invite three people, dead or alive, to a dinner party, who would they be?

Oh, my goodness. It would always be my family. My mom, my dad and my grandma.

Golf Reopens The Door To Live Sports Competition. By Ryan A. Berenz

Better late than never — Tiger Woods' chase for more major wins resumes

Tiger Woods: Credit: Mike Ehrmann/Getty Images Joey Logano: Credit: Christian Petersen/Getty Images

While the COVID-19 pandemic forced the postponement or cancellation of sports events worldwide for most of the spring, the PGA Tour was the first pro sports organization to set a target date for resuming its season. Officials assessed that they could safely resume competitive golf tournaments in June, albeit with a host of stipulations.

"Our sport lends itself more than any other sport to social distancing," PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan said in April following the announcement of the reconfigured season schedule, which will be condensed to 36 tournaments instead of the original 49.

If plans hold, the golf season will resume June 11-14 at the Charles Schwab Challenge at Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, Texas, which was originally scheduled for May 21-24. Tournaments continue June 18-21 for the RBC Heritage in Hilton Head, S.C., June 25-28 for the Travelers Championship in Cromwell, Conn., and July 2-5 for the Rocket Mortgage Classic in Detroit. There will be no spectators on the course for these four events, and only players, caddies and essential tournament personnel are permitted on-site. Golf Channel and CBS will televise.

Of golf's four majors, only the Open Championship, which was to take place next month in England, has been canceled. The PGA Championship has been moved to August, and the U.S. Open and the Ryder Cup will be played in consecutive weeks in September. Tiger Woods' Masters title defense at Augusta National will have to wait until November. While these marquee events will go on, they'll likely be without the jubilant roar from the galleries that are so much a part of their mystique.

Golf Season Key Dates

Aug. 6-9: PGA Championship (ESPN & CBS)
Sept. 4-7: Tour Championship (Golf Channel & NBC)
Sept. 17-20: U.S. Open (FS1 & FOX)
Sept. 25-27: Ryder Cup (Golf Channel & NBC)
Nov. 12-15: The Masters (ESPN & CBS)

(RE)START YOUR ENGINES

NASCAR's Joey Logano

Race fans could see NASCAR and IndyCar back on track in June, though without fans in attendance and with added safety measures for teams, officials and track personnel. At the time of this writing, NASCAR planned to resume its season in late May. NASCAR intends to complete all 36 Cup Series races for the season, though it hadn't announced a revised schedule. Also to be determined is how FOX Sports and NBC Sports will split TV coverage of the races for the remainder of the year, and how the playoffs will be impacted.

The NTT IndyCar Series hopes to get its season started June 6 at the Genesys 300 at Texas Motor Speedway, followed by events at Road America June 21 and Richmond Raceway June 27. IndyCar's revised schedule has 15 races, with doubleheaders at Iowa Speedway July 17-18 and Monterey, Calif., Sept. 19-20. Indianapolis Motor Speedway will host three events: the GMR Grand Prix July 4, the 104th Indianapolis 500 Aug. 23 and the IndyCar Harvest GP Oct. 3. IndyCar races air on NBC and NBCSN. — RAB

AMERICA'S GOT TALENT

The Actress Becomes A Judge — Sofia Vergara Joins "AGT" For Season 15. By Emily Aslanian

The talent show must go on … and it plans to! Season 15 of America's Got Talent is shaping up to be a brand-new experience for fans. Though the Terry Crews-hosted competition had only shot audition rounds from Pasadena, Calif., before production shut down amid the coronavirus pandemic, the series will continue to screen contestants, and the judges' reactions, from their respective homes. This transition is particularly tricky for brand-new judge Sofia Vergara, fresh off her time playing the fiery Gloria Delgado-Pritchett on Emmy-winning comedy Modern Family. "It's been super weird," Vergara notes. "I was starting to get the groove of the show and then suddenly all of this happened, unfortunately." Joined by judges Simon Cowell, Howie Mandel and a returning Heidi Klum, Vergara is the series' first Latina judge. Below, she clues us in on her introductory season.

How does it feel doing something like AGT after so many years of doing scripted comedy — are there any similarities?
Sofia Vergara: No, it's like nothing I had ever done before acting-wise. Actually, I think it was the best decision that I took this, because it's completely different! It's difficult, but very fun.

Speaking of Modern Family, which one of your former costars could you see on AGT?
[Laughs] No one. They [have talents], but they're actors. Eric Stonestreet, he can be a clown.

How would you describe your judging style?
I just want to be there, represent [the people at home], and be honest. If you're an expert in nothing like me, it's very dangerous to pretend you are one.

What's the biggest challenge you've found while shooting from home?
We're so grateful that we can actually do this and finish the whole season. Of course, it's not the same. You miss the audience, that energy. The music sounds better when you're on the stage. The lights make everything better. But now, you see the people in their own houses – it's very intimate. And you have to also be aware many times that the sound is not perfect, so you have to be using more of your imagination as to how this act would look on a stage.

What are your favorite and least favorite types of acts?
I love when I get surprised, like [if it's] a little girl and then suddenly her voice is like a woman, and you close your eyes and you can't realize it's this tiny 10-year-old. Or when somebody looks very serious, and then suddenly he's a really good comedian. I'm learning, but I am enjoying the surprises. One thing I didn't realize is that I don't love the sound of the ukulele. [Laughs]

Did any acts move you to tears?
Oh my God, yes. There were a couple things that I could relate to, what the contestant was saying, what they were going through that I had gone through in my life that really moved me.

America Needs "America's Got Talent" Now!

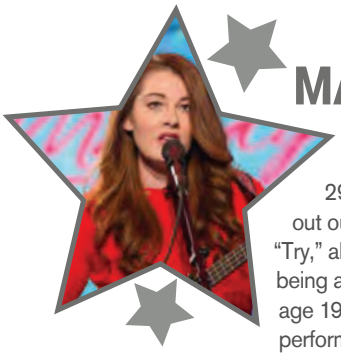

As The Show Starts Its 15th Season, We Take A Look Back At Some Of The Series' Former Standouts. By Barb Oates

America's Got Talent has a unique way of completely surprising you. We've laughed hysterically, gasped in disbelief and shed plenty of tears over the competition series' 14 seasons. Rarely is there a dry eye when one of the judges hits that Golden Buzzer (a direct advance to the final rounds of competition). Here we reminisce on a few AGT favorites and see where they are now.

SHIN LIM
(Season 13 winner)

Shin Lim won Season 13 and the first "Champions" edition with his close-up magic show. He now headlines his own show, Shin Lim: Limitless, at the Mirage Hotel & Casino.

MANDY HARVEY
(Season 12)

Barefoot and nervous, the then 29-year-old took the stage and ripped out our hearts singing her original song "Try," about trying to restore her hopes of being a singer after losing her hearing at age 19. She's now traveling the nation and performing her original music and sharing her inspirational story via speaking engagements and tours.

KODI LEE
(Season 14 winner)

At 22 years of age, the blind and autistic Kodi Lee was escorted onto the AGT stage by his mother, and showed the world something extraordinary singing and playing the piano. When he finished, Simon Cowell said: "I'm going to remember this moment for the rest of my life." After selling out his Las Vegas residency with other AGT performers, he continues to perform around the globe. Most recently, he signed an album deal with Columbia Records/Syco for the U.S. to be released later this year.

DARCI LYNNE FARMER
(Season 12 winner)

GOOD WITCH Brings Good Comfort

Hallmark's Top Drama Is A Modern-Day Mayberry, And Series Star James Denton Takes Us Inside The Show's Magic. By Taylor Neumann

Good Witch is one of the most popular shows on TV, and for good reason – the charming series welcomes viewers into its small town with open arms. The characters are warm, sunny and exactly what the doctor prescribed in this sometimes crazy world. Audiences turn to Hallmark for feel-good television, and Good Witch is exactly that. We talked to one of the stars of the show, James Denton – who plays Dr. Sam Radford, husband of Catherine Bell's Cassie Nightingale – to see what's new this season, what changes viewers can expect and how the show's friendly faces are just like those in another TV small town.

What can viewers expect this season on Good Witch?

James Denton: The biggest difference is Bailee Madison's gone. [Cassie and Sam] are empty nesters, and so it does away with a third of the show, [which] would have been about Grace's life in high school. So it's a very different feel. I wouldn't want to say it's better – it seems disrespectful to Bailee, that's not what I mean. But I think it's a little more fitting for the Hallmark audience. It felt like we struggled a little bit to dedicate as much time as we should have to Grace and her storylines, because Hallmark isn't really built for teenagers. So I think it might improve the show a little bit, not having to focus on high school stories, but we certainly miss her. She's a wonderful actress. And thankfully my son Nick on the show, played by Rhys Bond, is still around. We have a couple of good storylines with him. [And] we brought in a new character, Cat Burrell, who everybody loves – adding another Merriwick woman certainly opened a lot of possibilities for us. … So it's a little more focused on grownup relationships, which I think people will enjoy.

How does Cassie and Sam's relationship evolve this year?

It's fun. It was sort of like any empty nesters, you've got a lot more time on your hands, a lot more time to do stuff together. There's an episode where they start trying all these crazy things like throwing pottery – Sam's trying to learn how to work a potter's wheel. Cassie can do anything. And then Sam tries to teach her how to play the guitar. And he tries to meditate because that's what she's doing. And so then he has a putting green in his bedroom and he's got to teach her how to putt a golf ball. So they do a lot of fun stuff together that I think is pretty realistic for couples who all of a sudden have a lot more time together.

The show is so popular, with millions of viewers every week. What do you think makes the show a great place for viewers to spend an hour?

Well, I think a lot of that is Hallmark as a network. … People just come to Hallmark to see people not being horrible to each other. They would like a happy ending, a little bit of joy and love, and people just treating each other well. [As for] Good Witch specifically, I think it's Catherine Bell. I don't think there's any two ways about it. I don't know of another actress in television history who's been a lead on three different series that lasted six years or more [JAG, Army Wives and Good Witch]. So I think Catherine is a huge attraction. I think this is her best role, and she's so perfectly Cassie. There are a lot of reasons, but it's a show that will make you feel good. You can count on it; it won't let you down.

Executive producer Darin Goldberg actually described the show as a "modern-day Mayberry." Do you agree with that?

100%. Especially as a big Andy Griffith fan – I grew up in the South. And Andy Griffith was so much like my dad. So yeah, I think that's very true. I'm surprised I haven't thought of it because it's a small town where you know all the characters. You know Martha, you know Cathy Disher, Mayor Tinsdale is Barney Fife, I guess. And Cassie is Andy Griffith. I guess that makes me Helen Crump! But that's a great comparison. I think people watch it for the same reasons.

A Classic Character Reborn

PERRY MASON

HBO Reinvents The Legendary Lawyer With A Gripping Origin Story. By Jeff Pfeiffer

In HBO's terrific, eight-episode drama Perry Mason, Emmy winner Matthew Rhys (The Americans) takes on the mantle of the iconic character Perry Mason, the fictional defense attorney who began life in Erle Stanley Gardner's novels starting in the 1930s and had his most famous incarnation in Raymond Burr's 1957-66 TV drama. Rhys, who is also a producer of this latest series, is probably like most of us when it comes to Perry Mason when he agrees, "My larger reference point [for the character] was the Raymond Burr show."

Yet, reflecting on that series and the character, Rhys does note something interesting.

"The people I asked about [Burr's Perry Mason] … everyone kind of goes, 'Oh, yeah, it's about the defense lawyer who gets a confession on the stand.' And then you're like, 'Oh, did you used to watch it?' And they're like, 'Uh, no.'

"And I was the same. You know, you had this enormous awareness of it. You saw pictures of Raymond Burr on TV Guide Magazine. My grandparents watched and kind of go, 'Oh, yes, of course, Perry Mason, I loved that show.' And then I thought, 'Hang on, I don't think I've ever seen that show.' … It's one of those elements that's kind of firmly ingrained in you, and you have no real reason or knowledge as to why."

Rhys' observation of how this character has seeped into the pop-culture awareness of people even if they have never seen a Perry Mason film or TV show, or read the novels, is spot on. This notion, as well as the fact that Gardner revealed very little about Mason's background or personal life, makes the lawyer a prime candidate for a character who needs to be revisited with an origin story.

That's the premise behind HBO's series, which – with the blessing of Gardner's estate – reinvents and reinvigorates Perry Mason by filling in some of the blanks of his earlier, pre-law life and harkens back to the gritty pulp-fiction novels that introduced him, complete with sex and violence not seen in any onscreen Mason stories to this point.

The series is set in early 1930s Los Angeles, when Mason is a somewhat sketchy private investigator getting by on dubious assignments like photographing celebrities in compromising positions. It's a life that even Mason realizes is beneath him and seems guilty about; flashbacks from an incident during his World War I service reveal why he appears to feel like this may be the best he deserves.

But when Mason is hired by attorney and longtime mentor/father figure E.B. Jonathan (John Lithgow) to investigate the incident of a child kidnapping gone horribly wrong to help exonerate a wrongly accused client, the case consumes the investigator and starts turning him toward his future path.

"What's great about this Mason," says Rhys, "and what I loved about it, is that … you see this injustice he suffers in the First World War. I think that sets him up for life as someone who can't let an injustice pass him.

"The fact that he suffered such an injustice and has such a strong sense of justice now himself, and also because he's an outsider in so many elements of his own life, it makes him a good investigator. It's [also] kind of the two perfect traits for a good defense attorney."

As the case progresses, we also delve into the backgrounds of two other memorable characters – legal secretary Della Street (Juliet Rylance), who is struggling to have her professional talents and intelligence recognized amid her sexist surroundings, and future detective Paul Drake (Chris Chalk), who here is starting out as one of L.A.'s few African American beat cops. Beyond seeing them in their own lives, we also learn how their appearances in Perry Mason's orbit help contribute to what Rhys describes as the "forging of Mason."

While that forging takes place, though, Rhys explains that "you see how flawed and kind of fallible and layered [Mason] is as a character. Far, far from the polished image of Perry Mason that we certainly have."

The Case Of
THE MANY "PERRY MASON" ADAPTATIONS

For nearly 90 years, ace attorney Perry Mason has been defending the innocent in stories spanning various media:

BOOKS:

Between 1933 and 1973, creator Erle Stanley Gardner had 82 Perry Mason mystery novels published (including two after his death in 1970) along with four short stories. Perry Mason is estimated to be the third-bestselling book series of all time, with at least 300 million copies sold.

FEATURE FILMS:

Six Perry Mason films were released by Warner Bros. between 1934-37.

RADIO:

During the golden age of radio dramas, Perry Mason of course was featured in his own show, a 15-minute continuing series that aired weekdays between 1943-55. This show eventually evolved to become the long-running (and unrelated to Perry Mason) TV soap opera The Edge of Night.

TV:

Perry Mason's best-known incarnation came in CBS' 1957-66 primetime drama Perry Mason, starring Emmy winner Raymond Burr as Mason and Emmy winner Barbara Hale as Della Street. Every bit as much of a star of the series was Frederick Steiner's "Park Avenue Beat," the show's intro music and one of the greatest TV themes ever. CBS tried to bring the character back in 1973 with The New Perry Mason, featuring Monte Markham in the lead. Poorly received, it lasted only 15 episodes before being yanked from the lineup midseason. Maybe viewers of the time wouldn't accept anyone but Burr as Perry Mason? If that was the case, they got what they wanted when the actor returned to the role in a number of TV movies that aired on NBC between 1985 and 1995. Burr, who passed away in 1993, was able to reprise his legendary character in 26 of the 30 films NBC produced. – Jeff Pfeiffer

True-Crime Drama

DIRTY JOHN: THE BETTY BRODERICK STORY

Based On The Shocking Real-Life Story Of A Scorned Wife And Mother.

By Barb Oates

One of the most important things about a divorce is learning to pick your battles. For Betty Broderick, a California socialite, that proved impossible. In the engrossing eight-part series Dirty John: The Betty Broderick Story, Amanda Peet (Brockmire) and Christian Slater (Mr. Robot) portray Betty and Dan Broderick, an affluent San Diego couple whose bitter divorce in the '80s resulted in unfathomable verbal and mental abuses, rage-fueled assaults (Betty drove her car through Dan's front door) and ultimately, and tragically, a double homicide.

Peet, who grew up in New York City, was unfamiliar with the story and the 1992 made-for-TV movies about Betty starring Meredith Baxter, but was immediately drawn to the material after reading the script.

"I thought [their story] was very compelling because they appeared to have all the trappings and accoutrements of a normal suburban life and marriage," Peet says. "Part of the reason it's so captivating is because they seemed so normal. The run-up to the divorce was just so normal and relatable. There didn't seem to be a lot of evidence of mental illness or deep psychological issues until it was too late."

Dirty John creator and writer Alexandra Cunningham begins this ill-fated story roughly three years before the homicides, introducing us to a well-dressed and sharp-looking Betty as she prepares for a divorce settlement meeting. Through flashbacks, we see an innocent and rule-following Betty who was intoxicated with the smitten and wickedly smart Dan. They married in 1969, and while Dan completed both medical and law school and built a successful career, Betty supported him and mothered their four children.

"I think Alexandra did a really beautiful job of portraying this girl from the '50s who grew up with the social norms of that era, and her entire identity was wrapped up in her marriage to Dan and in being a mother," tells Peet. "Even though she was very, very smart and educated, that part of her life fell by the wayside as soon as she was pregnant, and I think that there are probably just a lot of women, including my mother, who can relate to the era in which women were really told either overtly or subliminally that once you're a mother, that becomes your identity, and everything else is swallowed up in the sphere of domesticity. For some women, I think that had devastating results, ramifications."

For Betty, Dan was her everything, and when he left her for his new assistant – the beautiful and bright 20-something Linda Kolkena – she was left feeling betrayed and helpless. Betty's attempts to fight back only fueled her rage and slowly

> "There didn't seem to be a lot of evidence of mental illness or deep psychological issues until it was too late." – Amanda Peet

destabilized her, while Dan's cold confidence and calculating legal savvy made him somewhat immune to just how irrational Betty had become, until it was too late. On an early Sunday morning in November 1989, Betty drove over to Dan's San Diego mansion, used a key she stole from her daughter to get into his house, snuck into the bedroom Dan shared with his new bride Linda, and pulled out and fired her .38 as they slept.

So much was lost in this battle.

For Peet, who is the wife of Game of Thrones co-creator and writer David Benioff and mother to their three children, getting into Betty's headspace was extremely difficult.

"It's definitely the hardest thing I've ever done," she concludes. "It was difficult to let go of my judgment of her, but I think most actors probably find it thrilling to explore mental illness and to explore why somebody snaps, and I know I do. I find it deeply compelling. What is sanity, and what causes someone to cross the line? How much of it is nurture? How much of it is nature?"

No one will ever really know.

The Real Betty Broderick

If Betty Broderick's name rings familiar, her highly publicized story was the subject of two CBS films in 1992 starring Meredith Baxter — A Woman Scorned: The Betty Broderick Story and Her Final Fury: Betty Broderick, the Last Chapter, along with several books. Her high-profile case split American public opinion in half, as some sided with Betty. While Betty's first trial ended in a mistrial, in 1991 she was convicted of two counts of second-degree murder and was sentenced to 32 years to life in prison. Now age 72, she is still incarcerated at the California Institution for Women. She was denied parole in 2010 and 2017.

TRACKERS

Get Entangled In Cinemax's South African Spy Thriller. By Ryan A. Berenz

Despite earlier reports of their demise, Cinemax original series are alive and kicking butt. The network, which delivered pulse-racing dramas like Banshee, Outcast and Warrior, planned to get out of series TV after Strike Back ended its run in April. Fortunately, Cinemax is back in action with Trackers, a six-part thriller based on a novel by Deon Meyer.

Set mainly in Cape Town, South Africa, Trackers spins a tangled web of international espionage, organized crime, terrorist plots, blood diamond smuggling and rhinoceros trafficking. Agents of the Presidential Bureau of Intelligence (PBI) are watching a small group of Islamic radicals known as "the Committee," who are suspected of trying to secretly import a weapon of mass destruction into the country. To pay for their operation, the Committee has hired a local mob boss to steal a cache of diamonds being smuggled in from Zimbabwe, but all hell breaks loose when the would-be hijackers find more (and less) than they expected.

Here's an intro to the key players in Trackers:

Milla Strachan (Rolanda Marais) Milla leaves an abusive marriage and takes a job as a researcher at PBI, never expecting to be thrust to the forefront of the battle against terrorism.

Lemmer (James Gracie) A fired PBI operative who now lives off the grid, Lemmer gets more than he bargained for when he accepts a job escorting a truck hauling suspicious cargo.

Janina Mentz (Sandi Schultz) After a politically embarrassing incident for PBI, Director Mentz is trying to justify the bureau's continued existence while overseeing the operation against the Committee.

Quinn Makebe (Thapelo Mokoena) The PBI chief of operations is a skilled spy whose overconfidence often puts him at odds with Mentz.

Flea van Jaarsveld (Trix Vivier) This supposed wildlife expert is involved in schemes far more dangerous than transporting rhinos.

Inkunzi Shabangu (Sisanda Henna) This headstrong crime boss plays out of his league when he contracts with the Committee.

SYFY WIRE'S THE GREAT DEBATE

Only One Nerd Can Reign Supreme In These Pop-Culture Arguments.

By Jeff Pfeiffer

Celebrity fans of pop culture will have the chance to discuss heated topics across the genres they love in Syfy Wire's The Great Debate. The half-hour, late-night series is based on a format that has been popular at Comic-Con, and is hosted by Baron Vaughn (Grace and Frankie).

"I get to kind of sit back and organize the chaos," Vaughn explains. "Ultimately, it's whoever impresses me the most that gets awarded the victory on that topic."

The panelists seeking victory here include "people who love having strong opinions about nonsensical things," Vaughn says. "The people who debate are personalities out of the world of geekdom and nerdery."

The coronavirus pandemic has currently shut down production on The Great Debate, but eight completed episodes will air. Aisha Tyler, Orlando Jones, Mayim Bialik, Reggie Watts and Adam Savage will be among the rotating panel of celebrities in these episodes.

BEECHAM HOUSE

"Masterpiece" Looks To The East For Its Newest Drama, The Lush "Beecham House."

By Meredith Ennis

PBS' Masterpiece turns its gaze on India for its newest drama, Beecham House. Filmed mainly on location and set in the time before Britain ruled the country, this lush six-part epic has all the elements needed for an absorbing tale in a far-flung location: mystery, greed, treachery, suspense and passion. The miniseries is from the acclaimed British Indian director Gurinder Chadha (Bend It Like Beckham), and it does what Masterpiece does best: gives viewers a peek through the window into the lives of fascinating characters who live in other times and places.

The story begins in 1795, as Englishman John Beecham arrives at his newly purchased estate in Delhi, India. Formerly an officer in the East India Company, Beecham left his position after becoming disillusioned with its business practices. His reasons for acquiring the estate are unclear, arousing the interest of a French general, as well as Emperor Shah Alam and his relative Murad Beg, who happens to be Beecham's new neighbor.

Beecham brings along an entourage that includes a mixed-race baby and its nurse – and soon enough, his mother, her companion Violet, and Samuel, an old army buddy of Beecham's. And then there's Beecham's wayward younger brother, rumored to be in the country serving as a mercenary for the East India Company.

And thus, a story of adventure and romance begins. Familiar faces among the cast include Tom Bateman (Vanity Fair) as Beecham, Lesley Nicol (Downton Abbey) as Beecham's mother Henrietta, and Dakota Blue Richards (Endeavour) as Margaret Osborne, the governess living next door. Others onboard include Gregory Fitoussi (Mr. Selfridge), Bessie Carter (Howards End), Leo Suter (Victoria) and Roshan Seth (Indian Summers).

LOST ON EVEREST

An Honest Look At The Grueling Climb In Search Of A Lost Explorer. By Barb Oates

In 1924, long before modern-day equipment, George Mallory and Andrew "Sandy" Irvine pioneered an unthinkable expedition. The two British mountaineers set out to summit Mount Everest. They were last seen on the mountain's northeast ridge just a few hundred meters from the top. Did they ever summit? Were they really the first to do so?

Thom Pollard (a history-making mountain climber) and Mark Synnott (bestselling author and pioneering climber) are obsessed with finding these answers. In the one-hour, thrilling Nat Geo special Lost on Everest, Pollard and Synnott assemble a team to find Irvine's body (Mallory's body was found in 1999) and recover the explorers' lost camera footage. Filming this difficult expedition was Renan Ozturk, an artist, climber and award-winning documentarian (watch his breath-stealing Meru). Ozturk, a self-described anti-Everest kind of guy, who prefers climbs less established and traveled, was intrigued by the challenge.

"This story just really jumped out because it was trying to figure out one of the greatest mysteries in exploration," Ozturk shared. "There was the strong possibility that there could be an answer to this mystery. … I give the utmost level of respect and honor [to Mallory and Irvine] having done what they did. I think every step of the way [in filming this] reassured those emotions as we were up there. A big part of this film, for us, was trying to give the world a really honest look at what Everest is because it's become such a polarized thing in the media, especially in this year, as they're calling it the year that Everest broke, because of the viral photos of the lines going to the summit. I hope that through Lost on Everest people can really see that it is this incredibly challenging thing."

BARKSKINS

Blood And Power In The New World. By Taylor Neumann

National Geographic is going back to the New World in its new eight-episode limited series, Barkskins. It follows a group of outcasts and outlaws who come over to North America from France, starting their own civilization known as – you guessed it – New France. Each are trying to escape something in their pasts and are looking to start fresh across the ocean. But New France has its own troubles, from the pains of building up the ground to the presence of the ever-dangerous Iroquois, who claim the land as their own.

The story takes place in the 1690s in Wobik, a small settlement in present-day Quebec. There are many threads and storylines running throughout Barkskins, including a strong Marcia Gay Harden as Mathilde Geffard, an innkeeper who seems to know everything happening around town. There are also two men, just off the boat, who find themselves indentured to an eccentric man named Claude Trepagny (David Thewlis), who has big dreams for his land and for New France itself. The boat also brings a group of young women, being groomed to be wives for the men already on the land. But they bring their own secrets as well.

The most mysterious characters are the English Mr. Hamish Goames (Aneurin Barnard) and his Native assistant Yvon (Zahn McClarnon), both from the powerful Hudson's Bay Company. They are investigating the disappearance of another agent from the company, which brings them against pretty much everyone in town as they attempt to find out the truth. The English are trying to drive the French from their territory, so Goames finds himself fought against at every turn.

The theme of the show is acquiring land and power, no matter what blood and violence it may bring. The frontier landscape is brutal, a harsh change for some of the settlers arriving from sophisticated France. There are mysterious massacres that few villagers seem willing to solve, instead choosing to ignore the dark reality of what they've gotten themselves into. But each inhabitant has their own dream – to change their fate and become successful in this new, thrilling world.

Fossil-Hunting Docuseries

DINO HUNTERS

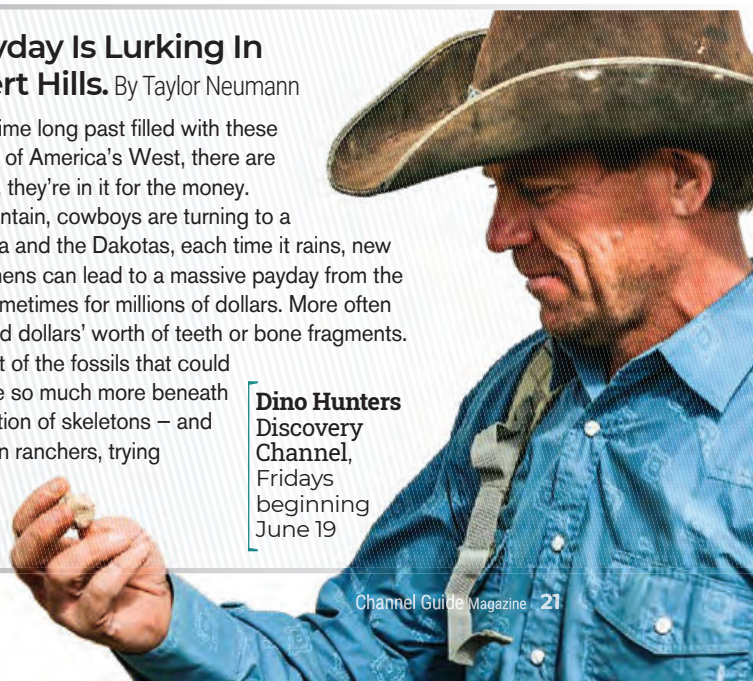

A Big Payday Is Lurking In The Desert Hills. By Taylor Neumann

Many of us spent our childhoods dreaming of dinosaurs, of a time long past filled with these majestic – and often deadly – creatures. But on the desert ranches of America's West, there are adults still just as enamored with those monsters of yore. Only now, they're in it for the money.

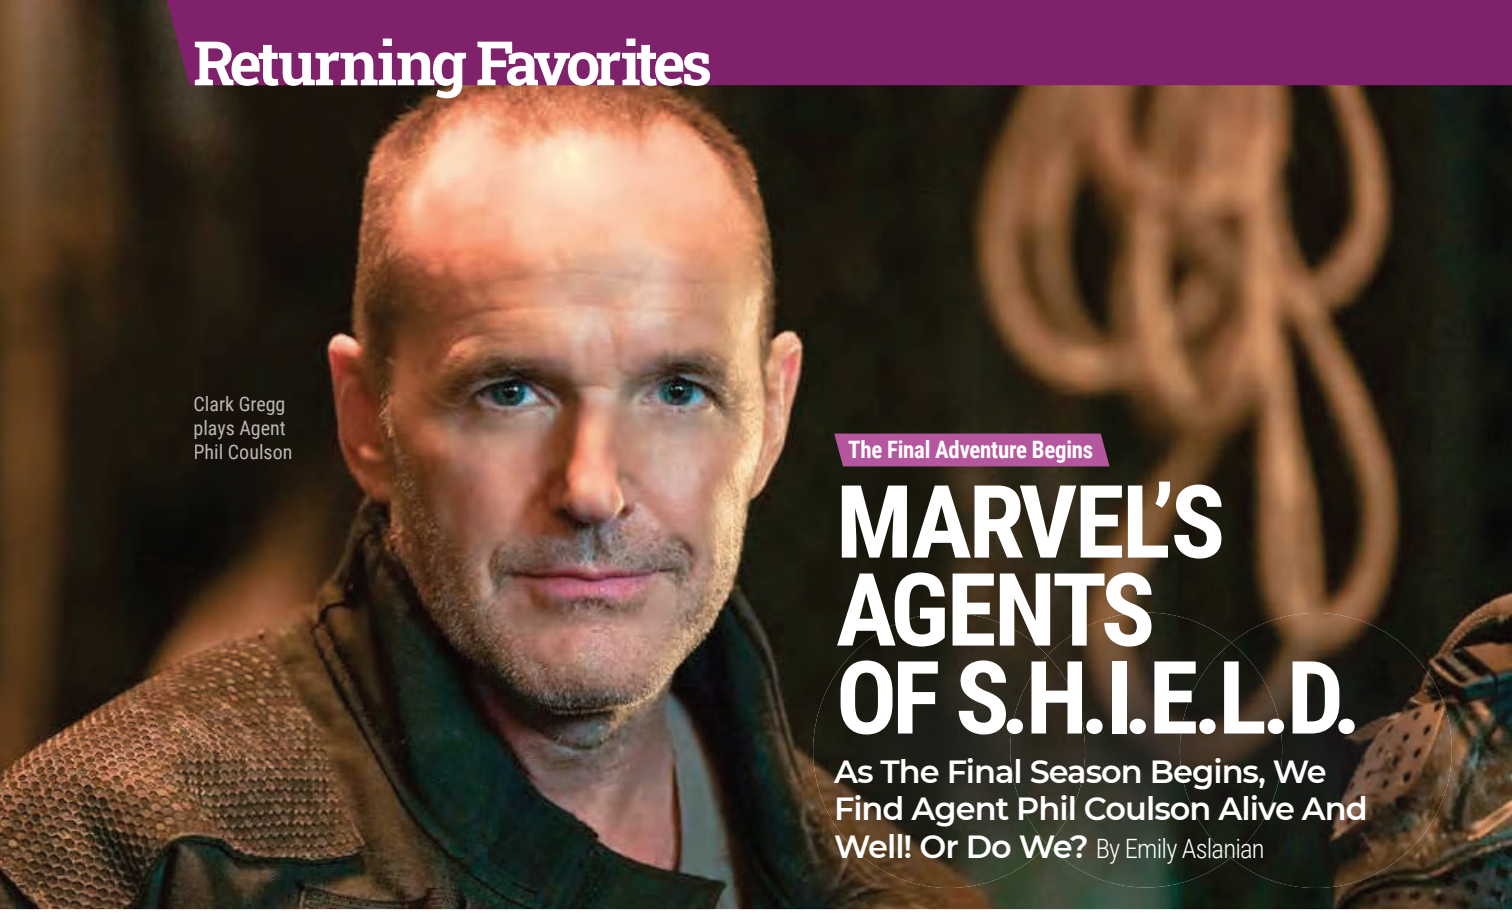

As ranching becomes a more and more difficult lifestyle to maintain, cowboys are turning to a new way to pay the bills: dinosaur bones. Out in Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas, each time it rains, new fossils are exposed in the eroding hillside. Finding complete specimens can lead to a massive payday from the biggest bidder, whether it's a museum or just a private collector, sometimes for millions of dollars. More often than not, a day's search only leads to the discovery of a few hundred dollars' worth of teeth or bone fragments.

Dino Hunters uses computer animation to show you the extent of the fossils that could be hidden in the rolling hills, as the discovery of just a horn could be so much more beneath the surface. Groups of ranchers join together to take on the excavation of skeletons – and share in any impending profits. Many are second- or third-generation ranchers, trying to continue in their established way of life. Now, they're first-generation dinosaur hunters. It just takes a good eye and a little bit of luck to stumble upon the next big discovery.

Clark Gregg plays Agent Phil Coulson

The Final Adventure Begins

MARVEL'S AGENTS OF S.H.I.E.L.D.

As The Final Season Begins, We Find Agent Phil Coulson Alive And Well! Or Do We?

By Emily Aslanian

After six seasons (123 episodes!) of the action-packed Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D., you'd think that viewers would know this ragtag gang of agents inside out. But that's not the case when the ABC series returns for its final adventure – a romp through time to preserve S.H.I.E.L.D. history starting in the 1930s – with half of the team having been through some major traumas in the Season 6 finale.

Thanks to time travel, scientist super-couple Simmons (Elizabeth Henstridge) and Fitz (Iain De Caestecker) are now slightly older, and have faced a yet-to-be-disclosed number of experiences, altering them in unknown ways ("that will be explored," executive producer Jed Whedon slyly teases). They're also apart, again, with Fitz hidden away so that the duo's combined knowledge cannot be used against them by the evil semi-robotic Chronicoms, who are now trying to turn Earth into their new home, Chronyca-3, and see S.H.I.E.L.D. as the only blockage in their way.

Meanwhile, Agent May (Ming-Na Wen) is healing in a stasis pod after killing mercenary Izel (Karolina Wydra) in the season ender, with no idea how she's been changed by her mysterious portal journey. "She is not the same," Whedon says. "She went through a strange world with ethereal creatures, she died, she came back – at least one of those things had to affect her."

But perhaps the biggest wildcard when the season begins is Agent Phil Coulson (Clark Gregg). That's right – the beloved boss, who perished at the end of Season 5, is alive and well … sort of. Simmons has created an LMD, "life model decoy," of the former director to serve as the history expert on their mission, even giving him a boosted upgrade with Chronicom tech. But is he the same guy? "He feels the same, but he's not," Whedon says. "[Coulson finds himself asking], 'What does it mean to be me? Are these feelings that I have real, or am I programmed?'" "There is some virtual soul-searching," Gregg agrees, adding, "[Being an LMD] is a reality the original Coulson was adamantly opposed to, but the team needs him."

Though the response from Coulson's fellow agents to seeing him in the synthetic flesh will vary ("there's a lot to emotionally unpack," executive producer Maurissa Tancharoen says), there was no question whether Gregg and his fan-favorite character would be welcomed back for the last expedition. "We're so happy to have Coulson, in any form," executive producer Jeffrey Bell admits. Tancharoen agrees: "Coulson is the heart of the show."

Kicking off in 1931 Manhattan, the world-saving team, which also includes current S.H.I.E.L.D. director Mack (Henry Simmons), badass fighter Quake/Daisy (Chloe Bennet), newest member Deke (Jeff Ward), speedy Inhuman Yo-Yo (Natalia Cordova-Buckley) and traitor to the Chronicoms Enoch (Joel Stoffer), will spend the season jumping between important S.H.I.E.L.D.-related moments throughout history (we'll also see them check out the '50s and '80s) in the newly revamped Zephyr. Keep your eyes peeled for Marvel Easter eggs along the way, says Bell. "That's the fun of going back in time, [getting to] see someone in a different life," he says. For example: Agent Carter's Enver Gjokaj is already confirmed to return as Daniel Sousa.

Our heroes quickly learn that to save S.H.I.E.L.D. from the Chronicoms, they must also save longstanding enemy organization Hydra. It's a tough pill to swallow, but it opens the door to a wacky season packed with action and hilarity. Bell teases: "I think there will be favorite episodes for [fans], and at the same time they're going to go, 'Oh my God, I can't believe they're doing this.'"

YELLOWSTONE

Josh Holloway Joins The Series As A New Foe To The Dutton Family.

By Kate Hahn

The rich Dutton ranching family, led by do-or-die patriarch John (Kevin Costner), has a new foe in Season 3: Roarke Morris, a hedge fund manager and land developer with local roots, played with slick down-home charm by Lost alum Josh Holloway. Anyone set on crossing the Duttons had better watch out, especially after last summer's finale in which John and his ex-SEAL son Kayce (Luke Grimes) killed the admittedly dirty Beck brothers, who'd sabotaged the ranch and kidnapped Kayce's boy (the child was saved).

"Roarke is no stranger to those cruel tactics. He's used to dealing with business on both sides of the law. He's definitely a threat to the Duttons," says Holloway. However, he is "not personally going to pull a gun out. He'd use an assassin."

Before being cast as Yellowstone's Lear-jetting baddie, Holloway was a fan of the contemporary Western, as well as a friend of co-creator Taylor Sheridan. They'd done a rodeo together and, avid anglers, traded "trout porn" photos. That led Sheridan to write a scene where a fly-fishing Morris first meets John's badass daughter, ex-corporate raider Beth (Kelly Reilly), who angrily accuses him of trespassing in her river.

"Beth's emasculating to most men. That doesn't scare Roarke," Holloway says of his character, who is single. "There's a spark even though they are on opposite sides." The actor promises things will come to a guns-blazing head and then adds wryly, "I grew up in Georgia around a bunch of ranchers. I don't remember there being that many deaths. This is like ranch mafia. I like it!"

Vic's life has changed dramatically since her encounters with Charlie. But when Charlie sets his sights on Wayne, Vic must pull herself together to protect the ones she loves.
